Gulf Coast Fabrication enjoys prosperity in Hancock County

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Gulf Coast Fabrication Inc. in the Port Bienville Industrial Park is not only an example of an American success story, it is an example of a Hancock County success story.

As an industry that was literally begun on the dreams of two men, Dan Mortimer and Fred May, it is now one of Hancock County's most prosperous industry, maintaining 130 jobs in the community and claiming $15 million a year in sales.

cializes in repairing and building barges, rigs, container vessels, tankers, scows and hoppers. In other words, "big boats."

At present, Gulf Coast Fabrication is repairing a 550-foot barge. According to partners Mortimer, president and May, Vice-president, it is the largest vessel to have entered the Hancock County facility.

"We were not certain if it would make the turn," Mortimer described, "but the tug boats did a fine job."

The barge is having its bow repaired and painted before it is sent back to its home in Tampa, Fla., 10 days ahead of schedule.

Mortimer credits the growth of Gulf Coast Fabrication to the men and women who work for him. He said, "I'll take our 130 ship builders and put them up against 200 of anyone else's, and we'll whip them."

"Our people are uniquely productive and hardworking."

"They keep our clients coming back through outstanding quality and performance."

"Gulf Coast Fabrication not only exists because of them, it is thriving because of them."

Mortimer said in the last 10 years, 78 percent of the small and moderate sized independent shipyards between Texas and Florida no longer exist.

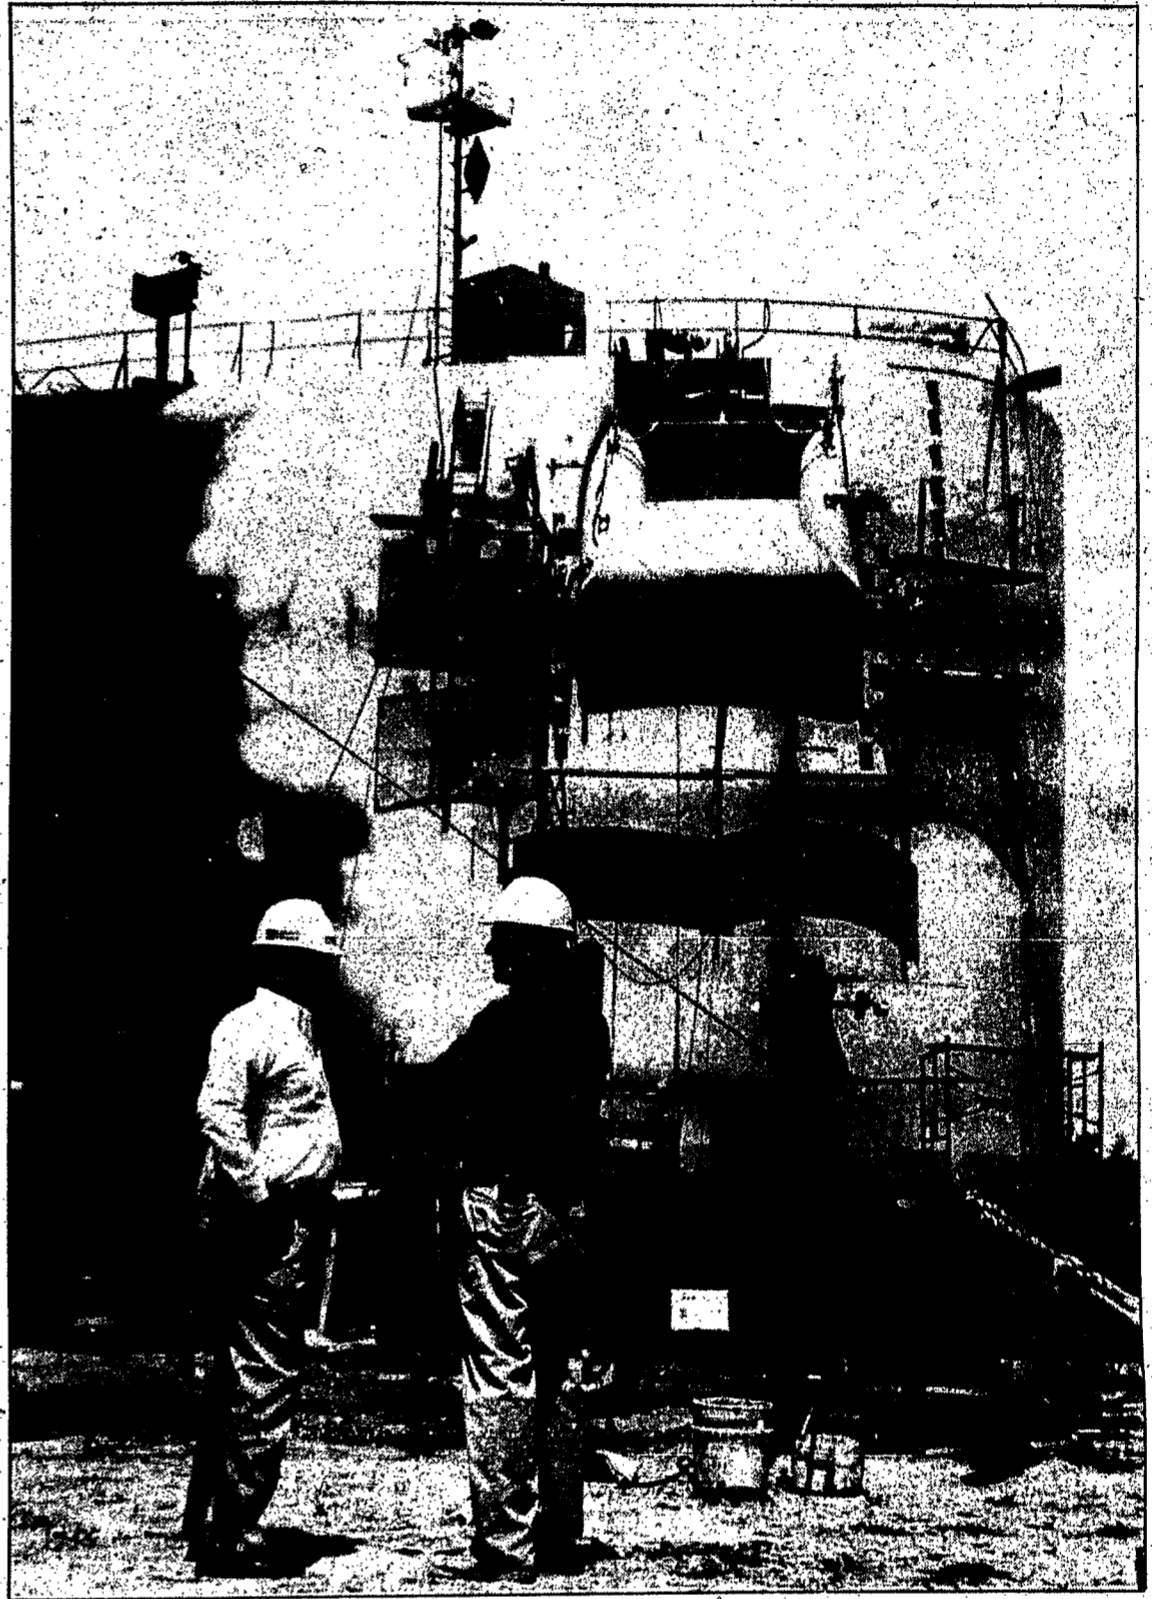

Mortimer also stresses the necessity for a business to live within its means. "Expansion within approved market conditions and consideration of the viable profitability of a project," keeps one healthy and strong.

"In my analysis," Mortimer added, "the men and women in ship building, given they are properly informed, provided with proper materials, a clear plan, some discipline and work ethics, are the last ones to disappoint you."

"If there is a problem, you will usually find a white collar wrapped around it."

When Mortimer spoke of Gulf Coast Fabrication, he spoke of it in terms of the employees. He mentioned both the men and women who have worked for him.

Mortimer said he has had women working as welders in the past, though at present there are none working in labor

Bayside man killed by hit-and-run driver

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Twenty-two-year-old Steven P. Zweifel of Bayside Park was killed Friday night when he was hit by a truck in the county subdivision, reported Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

According to reports, "At approximately 8:45 p.m. two witnesses heard a thump and looking in that direction noticed a truck with a loud (humming) mud grip or dual tires turning right onto Issaquena Street."

The incident occurred at the corner of Hancock Drive and West Holmes Street, Peterson stated.

He added, "We feel the driver of the vehicle was heading south on Hancock Drive."

"Witness reports indicate that the truck is blue metallic in color and is a three and a quarter-ton four-wheel-drive vehicle with possibly wire mesh or screen on the back."

"The details are still sketchy. We do not know at this time whether it was an accident and someone panicked, leaving the scene, or whether it was intentional."

"The call came in at 8:48 p.m. Responding was the Bayside

Checking beacon

Frank Hopper, vice commander of U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Bay-Waveland Flotilla 33, and Bob Simono, operations staff officer, were busy Wednesday morning checking the navigational beacons in the Bay of St. Louis. Simono's vessel, Seabelle was joined by Commander Milt Parmelee's Nau-Ti-Las in the exercise. Among the functions of auxiliary members is recreational boating safety and search and rescue missions. These volunteers stress safety on the water

Boat safety checks offered at no charge

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

One of the functions of the United States Coast Auxiliary is the inspection of recreational boats.

Milt Parmelee, Coast Guard Auxiliary Bay-Waveland Flotilla 33 commander, urges all boaters to obtain a free CME (Courtesy Marine Examination).

A CME involves the checking of a boat's safety equipment covering federal and state safety related requirements plus additional standards recommended by the auxiliary.

One of the items looked at closely is the use of automotive parts on engines in lieu of marine approved replacements.

The regulations for a boat's equipment vary depending upon the size and use of the vessel.

The examiners performing this service are all members of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, civilian-volunteers who have been carefully trained to look for some of the more common problems which might occur in your boat or its associated safety related equipment.

A Seal of Safety is issued by the Auxiliary to boat owners passing the requirements for their respective boats.

Auxiliary members emphasized that a CME is not a law enforcement activity and not conducted by any law enforcement organization. No report of you or your boat is ever made to any law enforcement agency.

You should know, however, that your boat is still subject to boarding by the Coast Guard, state or local authorities.

State regulations are different in many areas and auxiliary members keep abreast of these.

Some states require recreational boat owners to first pass a Coast Guard Auxiliary or state approved boating course before they can operate in local waters.

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

The abundance of boating activities in Hancock County on a regular basis, in addition to the July 4th holidays, is a fitting time to stress water safety.

The biggest pushers for recreational boating safety and water search and rescue are the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotillas with some 40,000 members in the U.S. and territories.

Milt Parmelee of Diamondhead is commander of U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Bay-Waveland Flotilla 33, which day, Parmelee and several other Coast Guard Auxiliary members told of their role in helping to make boating safe.

Parmelee emphasized, "Members of the auxiliary are all volunteers and use their own equipment in performing search and rescue missions. The only reimbursement is for fuel when a member is involved in official auxiliary operations. There may be a small amount of money for a little food when they are on duty over an extended period of time."

Among the distress calls

The local flotilla is composed of 25 members with four boats, one airplane and four land-based VHF radio stations used by the local auxiliary for search and rescue, to teach boating safety and other projects.

In an interview on Wednes-answered by the Coast Guard Auxiliary are 'dead in the water' (break downs) and running out of fuel.

Wes Castaneda, Rear Commodore of the Eastern Sector of District 8 headquartered in New Orleans said, "Aides to navigation are also a concern

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
 LeDoux, SVD

You are free if you can awaken in the morning without wincing, scowling, grumbling, griping; if you can arise with a yawn, a scratch and a sigh of contentment and relief that another day has dawned.

If you don't have to define pollution as "air apparent," you are free. Likewise, if you can walk barefoot in shallow water with no fear of treading upon the base of a broken bottle.

You are free if you can swim in water uncontaminated by raw sewage, and if you can eat seafood without getting metal deposits in your brain or in your bones.

Being free means the facility to get lost in the eloquent silence of the wilderness, the fire-studded vacuum of space, the riotous splash of the colorful world of flowers, the thunderous roar of wind and wave, the mysterious instincts of the animal kingdom, the majestic rise and fall of mountains.

You can be sure you are free if you know and appreciate the creative beauty and the powerful attraction of sex without becoming a useless captive of its wide-ranging influence; if you embrace beautiful people with beautiful characters, and avoid the infatuation of pretty but empty heads.

Freedom is the ability to be at ease, without jealousy or resentment, while watching your husband or wife give someone a friendly peck on the cheek or pass some moments are unafraid to associate with "one," to treat "one" as equal, to be sensitive to "one's" welfare, or even to let your daughter marry "one."

Freedom is watching "Wagon Train" and pulling for the Indians; it is relating to the poor unfortunates mired in the ghettos;
 it is feeling a strong human tie with the neighborhood drunks, junkies, hookers, spats-ties and diseased.

To be free, you cannot be enamored of the glitter of gold, the flash of precious stones, the security of goods and property, the exclusiveness of status and class, the thrill of having more and the illusion of being more than others.

You are free if you can use
 "wine which gladdens the human heart" without messing up your head through excess. If you can greet the new day without a hangover, without craving some kind of upper to pep you up or some kind of downer to calm frayed nerves, you are free.

Further, if you get high off people, if you find in them your greatest interest, motivation and joy, you are free.

Feeling earthy enough to work hard for a decent life here on earth, yet feeling spiritual enough to have faith in and strive for a far better existence beyond the gate of death is an unmistakable sign that you are free.

Freedom is an uncompromising adoption of the truth, even where it hurts; a clear rejection of what is false, even where lying would reap great benefits; a secure, content feeling with who, what, how and why we are and hope to be.

You are free if you weep with those who weep and rejoice with those who rejoice; if you do not allow reverses to depress you or conversing.

In like manner, freedom allows you to turn your back on someone or a crowd without anxiety as to what will be said about or done to anyone. It also stays above the smallness of taking offense or holding a grudge.

You are not free unless you

The Annual Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo at Gulfport runs July 4 through 7 at the Rice Pavilion, Gulfport, with headquarters at the intersection of U.S. Highway 90 and Highway 49. Queen for the rodeo was selected Saturday night from the princesses above to replace 1990 rodeo queen Christi Blackledge. The princesses visited Hancock County on Wednesday with a 7 a.m. visit at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce before touring the Stennis Space Center, Hospitality Center, Buccaneer Park, other points of interest and lunched at the Tommy Kidd residence on Beach Boulevard, Waveland. Chamber executive director, Cindy Vernon, standing fourth from right, served donuts and coffee to the princesses before their day of activities in the county. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

July 4th holidays always means crab festival time for the parishioners of Our Lady of the Gulf and church fair time for St. Rose de Lima in Bay St. Louis.

Our Lady of the Gulf's Crab Festival gets underway on Thursday, July 4 and will run through Sunday, July 7.

The festival will be on Beach Boulevard next to the church and will offer all types of activities for all age groups.

One of the most popular booths is the White Elephant booth. It offers just about anything you can think of and at reasonable prices.

This can be an opportunity for those wanting to purchase potted plants at a good price. They usually have just about any variety you can think of at the plant booth.

Good foods are also on the agenda at the Our Lady of the Gulf event, all types seafoods, crabs cooked so many ways and other good foods. I am getting hungry while writing about the food items.

St. Rose's Fair will run Friday, July 5 through Sunday, July 7.

The three-day fair begins at 11 a.m. each day and St. Rose will also sponsor its annual softball tourney.

Foods at St. Rose's on Friday will include shrimp po-boys, okra file gumbo, stuffed crabs and catfish plates. Saturday's menu will be red beans and rice or fried chicken; and on Sunday, roast turkey, cornbread dressing, sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce and hot rolls.

It is getting a little past my supper time on Friday evening as I write this column, and my taste buds are beginning to act up.

An auction will be held Saturday night and on Sunday night. Bo & Dee will rock the night from 5 p.m. until 11 p.m.

It sounds like a good time can be had at both of the Bay St. Louis fairs over the Fourth.

I will be out getting some of that good food.

Many folks will be having a long weekend over July 4th, and I am hoping everyone will have a safe holiday.

Fishermen do not want to forget the annual Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo in Gulfport. It begins on Thursday and runs through Sunday.

The rodeo brings out many spectators, as many folks like to visit the rodeo at the Rice Pavilion which is located at the head of Highway 90 and Beach Boulevard in Gulfport.

Russell Elliott of Bay St. Louis is the president and general chairman of the rodeo, and he reports there will be many prizes for those who catch the 'big fish.'

It is free to participate in the rodeo, one only has to pre-register for the freshwater and saltwater rodeo.

Fishing camps and area marinas have registration forms, or you can get one at the rodeo headquarters. Information on the varieties of fish is also available.

There will also be foods and entertainment at the rodeo.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Ballet Magnificat performance was glorious testimonial to God

To the Editor,

The performance of Ballet Magnificat at Bay High auditorium was a grand treat for the Coast, and we owe thanks to The Ballet Place director, Sharon Loiacono, for bringing Kathy Thibodeaux and her talented dancers to Bay St. Louis.

A jarring note for me was the combination of personal testimonials by Thibodeaux and her publicist with the aesthetics of the dance. Each selection in the program was an inspiring artistic statement of religious fervor, not only in the choreography but in the rapt and joyous expressions of the dancers. And each was a testimonial to their piety.

The Mozart Mass in G Minor needs no preacher to tell us that God is great, nor does Handel's Messiah or Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel ceiling. Each expresses spirituality through its art medium. And none requires the kind of "down home" preaching that accompanied the Ballet Magnificat program.

Such art requires no further commentary. Thibodeaux's solo, "We Shall Behold Him," which won her a silver medal in the II USA International Ballet competition, is a glorious testimonial to God, and I am humble and grateful for having seen it.

A fleet of attorneys representing two oil companies, the State of Mississippi, Hancock Company and several land owners are now battling in a trial which should set a precedent for interpreting the state's public trust doctrine. The trial, which began Monday in Gulfport, primarily involves Cinque Bambini Partnership, an international firm based at Holly Bluff in Hancock County, against the state. The partnership is suing the state to establish ownership of some 600 acres of property outlined as wetland areas in a Mississippi Marine Resources Council map prepared in the early 1970's.

The $1,031,608.50 contract for the sand berm is to be awarded July 1, it was learned Wednesday from the Mobile District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The Corps is handling the Hurricane Betsy repair work for the Office of Emergency Repair. The plan under consideration is to bring in the sand in two lifts, allowing the first to consolidate before it is raised again. The berm will extend out level for 50 feet from the edge of the seawall and the slope another 150 feet into the water.

Even though he feels the license costs set up for the new state liquor law may be too high, the father of the measure firmly believes the package dealer and bar operator will make a handy profit under the plan. State Representative Walter J. Phillips of Bay St. Louis, who steered House Bill 112 to its successful passage as chairman of the House Temperance Committee, discussed the finer points of the legislation this week.

The Rev. M.J. Costello, pastor of St. Clare Catholic Church in Waveland, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood on Tuesday, June 24th when members of the Sanctuary Society and the parishioners of the church presented Father Costello with a substantial purse: Born in Ireland, Father Costello was appointed pastor of St. Clare's in 1919.

Thousands of people in all walks of life traveled towards Gulfport Wednesday afternoon to attend the last rites for Senator Pat Harrison, senior senator from Mississippi, held at the First Methodist Church, to which all members of the special train from Washington, officials from Jackson, other officials and members of the press were admitted to remain in the spacious edifice. On the outside of the church thousands stood and heard the service by means of loud speaking apparatus. Such profusion and wealth of flowers have never been seen. From Hancock County came a design forming a large American flag, composed of immortelles, in natural color of red and white and blue sent by the Board of Supervisors. It was an unusual and handsome design and stood out prominently where hundreds of designs were placed around the bier. This piece was originated and constructed by the Lorraine Flower Shop at Pass Christian.

Attorney V.A. Griffin, who represents the Hines Lumber Co. of Chicago, has returned from that city with a contract signed by the Hines Lumber Co. This contract involves the location of a large saw mill at Gulfport. The Gulf & Island will begin to lay its tracks which will reach the vast Hines timber tract and the Jordan River Company's plant on Jordan River in Hancock County. The Hines tract is said to be the largest let standing in this section of the South and it is estimated that it will take 35 years to exhaust the stand.

The applause which greeted its rendition was well merited and indicated that the composition had caught the public's fancy, and it is safe to predict that it will at once become popular.

St. Rose Fair

Fund-raiser features food, music and fun

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
St. Rose de Lima is having its 65th anniversary fair the weekend of July 5-7.

Raffles totaling $5,000 will be drawn on Sunday. First prize will be $2,000, second prize, $1,500 and third prize, $500. Ten prizes of $100 each will be awarded. The winners need not be present.

To tempt the tastebuds, food booths will include seafood offerings on Friday with shrimp po-boys, okra file gumbo, stuffed crab or catfish plates. On Saturday there will be red vides some hot jazz.

At 7:30 p.m. Street Image will dance for everyone's entertainment. An auction will be held at 8 p.m. followed by a fashion show at 9 p.m. At 11:30 p.m. disc jockey Travis will spin records until the night ends.

Sunday, the softball tournament continues at 10 a.m. At 5 p.m. Bo & Dee will rock the night until 11 p.m. when the raffle drawing reveals this year's money winners.

All booths will open at 10 a.m. and all food booths will open at 11 a.m., Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

There will be a Kiddie Land for the children which will offer games, finger painting, modeling clay art, a space walk and much more.

For more information or tickets call Bev Williams at 467-5168 or St. Rose Parish at 467-7347.

Tommy Luke of J. W. Puckett Co. of Gulfport, second from left, was low bidder with $26,238 for construction of a multi-purpose athletic field house to be built behind Bay High School. From left are business manager Garland Cuevas, Luke, superintendent Robert Magee and secretary Dominica Favre. The bid was taken under advisement until the July 8 board meeting. The Bay High Athletic Club, represented by J. E. Loiacano, far left, has budgeted $15-20,000 for completion of the building. "The school system and taxpayers will be getting a much-needed field house for 50 cents on the dollar with our contribution," said Loiacano. (Photo by T. H. (Doc) Toups)

Bay St. Louis woman killed on Pearl River overpass

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

A Bay St. Louis woman was thrown from her van Thursday atop of the Pearl River interstate overpass and killed when she lost control of the vehicle following heavy rains, Mississippi Highway Patrol public affairs officer Dan Tackett

He stated that at approximately 4:33 p.m. witnesses stated seeing the westbound Toyota van, driven by Terri S. Ramos, 36, smash onto the center divider, slide over and hit the right side guard rail, spin and stop.

Tackett said witnesses also reported seeing Ramos' body thrown from the van window and impact with the center divider after the second collision with the bridge guard rail.

The Slidell Fire rescue unit, Louisiana Highway Patrol and the Hancock County Sheriff's Department responded to calls for assistance.

Tackett said, "There were two or three spin-off accidents which resulted in no injuries."

"Ramos was not wearing a seat belt."

He added, "The cause of the accident was given as speeding too fast for highway conditions."

Bay St. Louis pilot dies in small plane crash

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Pike County Sheriff Billy Simmons reported that the bodies of Bay St. Louis flight instructor Roy Stewart, 71, and 20-year-old student pilot Chris Rayborn of McComb were found at 4 p.m. Wednesday seven miles southeast of the Pike Airport.

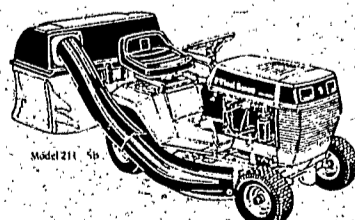

Simmons stated that along with sheriff dept. deputies, civil defense officials and volunteer firemen joined in the search for the two men following a report that they had not returned from a training flight.

"The federal government is trying to investigate the reasons for the crash," Simmons added. "We have no idea what happened at this time."

The Pike Airport is in the community of Chatawa which

at the Industrial Park dock.

"They certainly can qualify and do the work," he added. Mortimer spoke of the future for Gulf Coast Fabrication saying he expects this decade to be strong economically.

He anticipated no basic change in his present business practices since thus far it has brought him 220 satisfied customers with another five contracts ready to go.

Gulf Coast Fabrication is one of Hancock County's Port and Harbor Commission's obvious successes, among others. In 1985 when the young expanding company outgrew its Pass Christian Industrial Park home, the commission was there to point out a new direction which was of benefit to this county.

Mortimer came to New Orleans in 1978 from New York state with a degree in naval architecture to work for Halter Marine Inc.

While there he met with May who was contracted to build some fabrication shops for Halter Marine, and in 1981 the two men decided to take a chance on beginning their own business.

"We borrowed equipment," he commented. "We borrowed money. We began with next to nothing."

"It was a very humble beginning."

Mortimer claimed, "Being the master of your own destiny had a lot to be said for it."

"It is always worth trying, regardless of the risk."

Satisfied with the physical facilities within Port Bienville, he stated, "Hancock County has everything we need to be a success."

Mortimer commended the Port and Harbor Commission, which is the business arm of the county, for the job they perform.

"The commission uses tax dollars to go out and promote business for the county which in turn generates job and labor dollars."

"They are concentrated, focused and are not just peddling land."

"We enjoy a good working relationship with Port and Harbor Commission."

"Port and Harbor has supplied all of our needs when asked and takes the lead in helping to solve problems."

"We think this is the perfect environment to locate a business."

Gulf Coast Fabrication is presently working on four jobs in addition to the 550-foot barge.

There is the contract for the construction of three ramp levels which are used on amphibious vessels such as in troop transportation; a 320-foot long U-shaped barge for the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers; two floating platforms intended for roll-on and roll-off cargo; and the repair of a ship rutter which Mortimer calls, "A fancy, complex design from England."

Most of Gulf Coast Fabrication's customers come from the Pacific northwest coast, the northeast Atlantic coast, Asia, Africa and South America, Mortimer reported.

He claims his clients continue to return to Gulf Coast Fabrications because of work quality and low labor cost.

"Normally a job like the (550-foot) barge would go to a big yard like Avondale or one of the yards in Tampa, Fla. or Mobile, Ala."

Mortimer willingly admits that the size of Gulf Coast Fabrication is "just right" for him and partner May.

"We have a small in-house staff of engineers, for most of our jobs come with owner-supplied engineering."

"We put our money back into equipment and people."

"We don't squander it on layers of management."

An expenditure of a half million dollars is about to begin, as Mortimer reports the company received the permits Monday to build a 900-foot sideways launching dock.

Gulf Coast Fabrication presently has a 150-foot wide by 450-foot long grave dock.

A grave dock is constructed into the land adjacent to the waterway. The dock area is flooded and the vessel is floated into the dock area. The water is then pumped out, bringing the vessel to rest on the bottom of the dry "grave" allowing work to be performed on the body of the vessel.

A sideways launching dock is constructed along side of the waterway. New construction is built directly on top of tilt-beams which slide the vessel into the water upon completion.

The 900-foot sideways launching dock is intended for new construction while the grave dock will be used for repair work, thereby increasing the company's ability to expand its workload.

Mortimer, as firm in voice as his company is in contracts, states, "We are entering into a strong decade that will be bullish on the market place for the next 10 years, but we are looking forward to the challenges."

Mortimer, 44, and May, 41, agree that hard work and diligence can bring success to a small company.

Sports fishermen seek rehearing on elimination of undersize trout

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Approximately 540 people have signed a petition that is circulating in Hancock County for a rehearing on Monday's decision by BMR to eliminate the undersize speckled trout catch.

Jim Maness, a Clermont Harbor resident and opponent to the current BMR ruling on trout fishing, states, "the petition calls to attention the responsibility of BMR to protect our natural resources."

"When BMR claims 60 percent of the speckled trout caught and returned to the waters live, then conversely 40 percent die."

"As fishermen, we (the 540) feel that number quoted by BMR is incorrect and that the actual amount that dies is more like 90 percent."

Lionel "Tommy" Bordages, of Bordages Brothers Fishing Camp in Lakeshore, reports that the new proposal was "bull-dozed through" by the Bureau of Marine Resources (BMR) during Monday's Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks Commission hearing which he attended.

Bordages stated, "The commission should have asked questions of the BMR people."

"BMR should have explained their charts and graphs and accounted for the accuracy of their statistics to the commission."

"I saw none of this was done. It was like it was all worked out before hand."

Maness reported that he and Bordages have been selected as spokespersons for the "Save Our Sports Fish" effort.

"We have contacted the National Marine Fisheries Service in Washington, D.C. and requested biological studies showing the death rate of the sea trout following handling."

Bordages commented that during the hearing, the question of slot-limitations on white perch was brought up.

"One of the commissioners at the hearing said he opposed such a move because so many (white perch) die after being returned to the water."

"I could not believe he objected to the waste of the white perch and not speckled trout."

"It makes no sense."

Bordages continued, "According to the statics BMR gave during the two local public hearings, less than one pound of trout is being caught per sports fisherman and 240 pounds of trout are being caught per commercial fisherman."

"Now you figure it out." Maness said people in Harrison County have asked that copies of the petition be made available to them also.

"I will be at the big fishing rodeo on July 7 with a table set up for people to come by and sign the petition."

"We are attempting to have someone at other events this weekend also."

Maness added that people have already begun volunteering financial contributions in this battle.

Bordages, who claims to see dead trout floating in the waterways everyday, said, "They started limiting the catches in 1986 and the numbers have grown less by their own statics. It is obviously not working."

"But the worst is, they are asking us to kill 30 in order to keep 25."

As of July 25 the commission voted that no speckled trout under 14 inches is to be kept by a recreational fisherman.

Also a recreational fisherman is limited to 25 fish per day and 25 in possession.

Pearlington man found dead in his van/home

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

A Pearlington man was found dead in his van/home Friday evening after relatives called the Hancock County Sheriff's Department and expressed concern for his well-being, reported Investigator Glenn Strong.

He said Leo Paul Carver, 36 years old, was found to be dead in the van where he lived on the adjoining property of his relatives when sheriff department deputies arrived.

"We do not know yet what he died of," Strong stated, "but we do feel his death was of natural causes."

The investigator reported that, according to relatives, Carver suffered from a history of medical problems.

He added that an autopsy was being performed to determine the exact cause of death.

Watermelon, first choice of most of us for the tasty finale to the Big Fourth of July Feast, is in ample supply and at good prices at our area supermarkets and Farmer's Markets and at roadside stands along the Coast as well, so get busy and pick yours out and start chilling 'em down for the feast!

Peaches rank third with American fruit fanciers, I understand, (after bananas) and these, too, fill the fruit bins. Canteloupes, nectarines, grapes and apples are also offered, along with blueberries and raspberries and strawberries; so you might want to mix 'em all up, or at least some of 'em, and pile them into a hollowed-out watermelon shell for a delicious fruit basket, for instance.

Or, try cutting a "plug" in your melon and slipping in a few ounces of rum or bourbon, replacing the plug and letting the melon sit and get a bit "soused" until you're ready to devour it—quite tasty! Or, just spread newspapers on the patio or picnic table or whatever, and dig into slices of watermelon.

Pork spare ribs, all sizes and sorts, are the stellar specials at the markets just now, in quantities to suit just about every need from riblets on up to the big ones ready for the Fourth of July barbecue!

Fryer breasts and fryer leg quarters, also top choices for the barbecue, bear special price tags, with whole fryers offered as well. Whole beef briskets are also featured as well as 7-bone beef chuck steaks and boneless ribeyes and other cuts.

And, let's not forget that old reliable, ground beef!

In the vegetable bins there are mountains of cabbage for that coleslaw, along with yellow corn and fresh mushrooms and broccoli. Canned beans are also a good buy for the baked beans to go along with the barbecued pork ribs or chicken or whatever you choose, that traditional fare for the Festive Fourth!

SWEET AND SOUR STOVETOP SPARERIBS
2 lbs. spareribs
2 small cloves garlic, minced
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/4 cup soy sauce
2 Tbsp. vinegar
2 cups canned pineapple chunks (reserving juice)

1 Tbsp. cornstarch
Cut the spareribs into 1 1/2-inch pieces. Combine all the ingredients except for the pineapple and cornstarch. Simmer for an hour, then set aside for a few minutes. Pour off the excess fat, and place the meat in a separate bowl.

Heat the liquid and add the pineapple juice to the liquid. Bring the mixture to a boil. Add the cornstarch and cook until thick. Pour the sauce over the ribs, arranging the pineapple chunks on top. (4 servings)

I've had a number of requests for a "good, hot" and versatile barbecue sauce. Here's one which has stood the test of time and taste very well. It's from the American Spice Trade Association, and I first tried it 30-some years ago! Here's:

HOT GEORGIA BARBECUE SAUCE
1/2 cup fresh lemon juice
1/3 cup cider vinegar
3/4 cup tomato catsup
1/4 cup water
1 Tbsp. brown sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. powdered dry mustard
1 tsp. paprika
1/2 tsp. ground black pepper
1/2 tsp. ground red pepper
1/2 tsp. onion powder
1/8 tsp. garlic powder
1 tsp. red hot sauce
2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
Combine all ingredients in a saucepan. Heat to boiling point. Use for barbecuing chicken, pork, veal, beef or lamb. (1 1/2 cups)

Tilapia: aquatic food of the future

Tilapia, considered a miracle fish, is said to be the fish from the Sea of Galilee that Jesus multiplied by 5,000 on the spot.

Tilapia have been raised since at least 2500 B.C. They start reproducing only a few months after birth and can survive in very high densities, because they require very little oxygen.

They feed on algae and are often introduced as a means of controlling obnoxious algae. However, they taste better when fed and grown in unstagnated water.

As long as the temperature is above 55 degrees F, this African native can thrive anywhere. Because they breed so fast, tilapia are easily interbred to produce new hybrids fine-tuned to specific environments or market requirements.

Although little tilapia has been marketed in the U.S., it's predicted that a lot of farmed tilapia should be around in the near future.

Because of its limitless potential for genetic engineering, this hardy, fast-growing protein converter may well live up to its miracle billing as "the aquatic chicken of the future." Tilapia farming in South Mississippi is gaining momentum and the fish should be in local markets in the near future.

If you've tried tilapia in some area and found it too strong, don't give up the fish. High quality tilapia taste mild like any similar white-fleshed fish.

When buying tilapia, remember "it's the water" that makes the difference. Fish are like a sponge; tilapia raised on algae in a stagnant pond in Zimbabwe won't taste like the same species fed on a fish-meal diet in fresh Hawaiian rainwater or clean Mississippi ponds.

Judge tilapia quality like you would any white-fleshed fish. The flesh should be firm, springing back when poked with a finger. If the meat has a grayish hue, the tilapia is past its prime (a pink cast is okay).

When it comes to the kitchen, tilapia is one of the most versatile of fish. Because it's mild and sweet, it adapts well to a variety of preparations and it cooks extremely quickly.

It is ideal for steaming, frying, sauteeing, and adding to soups and stews. Because it has little inherent flavor, it acts as a vehicle for other flavors and can be served with highly spiced sauces and herbs.

Beware of grilling tilapia on a conventional grill. It tends to dry out and fall apart over intense heat.

Tilapia is a relatively new comer, but it is making inroads into the U.S. market as quality and supply problems are being resolved.

If you like salmon, trout, halibut, snapper and other familiar seafoods, you'll like tilapia. After tasting the white mild meat, you'll be adding tilapia to your list of favorite seafoods.

In general, treat tilapia as you would any fine mild fish and you can't go wrong. Watch your local seafood markets for the appearance of this old, yet new fish.

Exchange Club of Hancock County

The Exchange Club of Hancock County, chartered April 13, 1985, is an active affiliate of America's oldest and largest national service club organization. The National Exchange Club, incorporated in 1917, has developed a series of people-to-people programs which through the years have been undertaken by local Exchange Clubs. These programs are designed to improve, advance and uplift the human social condition of our citizenry, as well as preserve and perpetuate our national heritage.

The Exchange Club programs are divided into three categories: service to youth; Americanism; and community service. Each program category consists of a variety of activities, such as the nationally acclaimed Crime Prevention Project; the Freedom Shrine; the National Youth of the Year Award and others.

When Hancock Countians see the U.S. flags displayed during national holidays along streets and boulevards, or notice the Freedom Shrines displayed in the County Courthouse lobby and the schools, or read in the newspaper about local youth being honored for their positive accomplishments, they then know the local Exchange Club is at work.

Another major program of the Exchange Club is the Exchange Club Foundation for the Prevention of Child Abuse. The Hancock County Exchange Club was a founder and is a participating partner in the South Mississippi Family Child Center, established in September, 1988.

The Center, with offices in Gulfport, serves the entire Mississippi Gulf Coast area. The Center provides such child abuse prevention services as: Parent Aid Programs; Community Awareness/Education Programs; Multidisciplinary Intervention Teams; Child Advocacy and Referral Service; Abuse Resource Library and more.

The Exchange Club of Hancock County supports the Center financially through such activities as the "Annual Fun-Rais'n Auction" and the Exchange Club "Cut-A-Thon" held June 15 at participating hair salons throughout the county.

Membership is available to anyone who is interested. For more information, call Julie Cannon, 467-2323.

Hancock County Rotary started in 1925

On May 25, 1925, a group of 26 men, all outstanding citizens of Bay St. Louis, met for the purpose of organizing a local Rotary Club.

Two months later, on July 29, the club's charter was formally granted, and Bay St. Louis Rotary got underway.

During much of the club's existence, it met weekly at a hotel initially known as the Hotel Weston, later Hotel Reed, Gulfview Nursing Home and now Hotel Reed Nursing Home.

The club met at several places in Bay St. Louis and Waveland after the Hotel Reed tenure and currently meets every Wednesday at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club.

The late Carl Smith, who lived to an age of 100 and was driving himself to Rotary meetings at age 99, holds the distinction as serving as the club's secretary for 25 consecutive years.

One of the major projects of the new Rotary Club was to organize a Chamber of Commerce in the fall of 1925. Rotarians have been prominent in the chamber ever since.

In 1927 the Rotary Club proposed the town's first zoning; 1930, the club gave a minstrel show to raise funds for free adult night classes; 1937 undertook a project to provide natural gas for the City of Bay St. Louis; 1938 sponsored the organization of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club; and in 1952 presented a new resuscitator to the hospital in Bay St. Louis.

The Bay Rotary Club has been involved in numerous other community projects throughout the years.

The first board of directors elected at the first meeting in 1925 were E.J. Leonhard, Charles G. Moreau, George R. Rhea, L.J. Norman, Emile Gex, John Osinich and C.C. McDonald Sr.

The following officers were elected: E.J. Leonhard, president; Charles G. Moreau, vice-president; Arthur Scafide, secretary; and Herbert U. Canty, sergeant-at-arms.

Rhodes, past president; and Ellis C. Cuevas, Jerry Heitzmann and John Mason, directors.

In 1989 the Bay Rotary Club sponsored the formation of a Rotary Club in the Diamondhead Community and it received its charter in February, 1990 with 30 members.

Hancock County is in District 684 which will change this year to District 6840.

David Treutel Jr. and Ellis C. Cuevas served as the District Governor's representatives from the Bay St. Louis club during the formation, organization and first year of operation of the new Rotary Club.

CLUBS, CHURCHES

First Baptist Church

First Baptist Church, located at 141 Main Street in Bay St. Louis, has been working to meet the community's spiritual needs since 1896.

The church was organized on April 19, 1896, on Easterbrook Street. In 1947, the church moved to its present location, having purchased and brought to Main Street an Army chapel that was dismantled. It was then re-assembled and the outside bricked.

Since then, there have been several other buildings added, and additional land has been purchased, to bring the church to its present size and structure.

The Rev. Nathan L. Barber is pastor. He or secretary Rena Jean Rayborn may be reached at 467-4005.

United Methodist Gulfside Assembly

The assembly, established in 1923, operates under the auspices of the United Methodist Church and is managed by co-directors Charles and Nora Kellogg.

The center, which faces the beach, has provided programs and services for religious groups since 1923. It was formerly the Jackson Place, now occupied by Buccaneer Park.

For information, contact the Kelloggs at 467-4909.

Main Street United Methodist Church

Main Street United Methodist Church, 162 Main Street, is one of the Coast area's earliest churches.

The church was organized in 1852. Services were held in a small building at the corner of Main and Second Streets on property given by John B. Toulme for a church. Records show that the church was known as St. John's Methodist Church in 1859 rather than by its present name.

The present church building, now 96 years old, was erected in 1895. Considered to be an outstanding example of Carpenter Gothic architecture, the glazing and installation of the church's original windows is of very fine quality and workmanship.

The church building was not completed until near the turn of the century. In 1896 the people were worshipping for the second year in an incomplete building which had no doors or windows. The new building was wired in 1900 for electricity at a cost of $36, according to records.

In 1936, a six-classroom annex was constructed at the rear of the present sanctuary, and in 1944 A.C. Exnicious gave the church a plot of land adjoining the church building lot. Five years later the church purchased from Mr. Exnicious a two-story building, adjacent to the land given earlier, which was used for educational purposes.

With these additions, the church grounds now cover nearly all of a small city block in the downtown area next to the county courthouse.

In the 1950's, the annex building was renovated and enlarged to contain a pastor's study, a kitchen, dining room, fellowship hall and two dressing rooms.

The Methodist Day Care Center opened Sept. 1, 1980, under the leadership of Rev. Willis Britt. Present enrollment is 70 students, 3 months to 11 years old. Pre-kindergarten and summer camp programs also are in operation. Director is Betty Robinson.

In 1983 a pastor's study was built between the fellowship hall and the educational building, and in 1990-1991 a parking lot south of the educational building was paved and landscaped.

Rev. Van Carpenter is pastor. The phone number is 467-4538.

Rescues by Coast Guard save day for many sailors

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

One of the services provided by the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary is patrolling sailing regattas.

Milt Parmelee, U.S. Coast Guard Bay-Waveland Flotilla 33 commander stated, "This service relieves the Coast Guard which has many mandated functions already while more are issued every year by Congress."

Parmelee recalled a recent incident in which he was patrolling a regatta in Gulfport,

"I wish you could have seen the size of the eyes of those youngsters when they spotted us coming through the rain to their rescue," Parmelee said.

Parmelee continued, "They were all soaked to the skin and we took them aboard and below deck to dry off. I have never seen anyone so grateful and appreciative of our services."

Another recent rescue mission involved a person who had an old boat near the Intracoastal Waterway and been out two days and a night.

A sailing craft spotted the boat with one person aboard and called the Coast Guard, but gave an incorrect location on the crippled craft.

The reported area was searched several times and Parmelee said, "Something told me to try another direction, which I did, and we finally just spotted the craft at a distance."

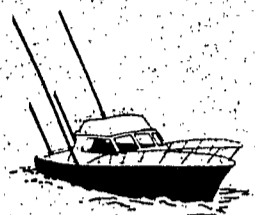

"When we rescued the occupant, he did not even know his name, where he was, his age, or anything. We comforted him as we brought him ashore. When we got to the dock, we saw he had a wallet, which we asked for and found a telephone number of a brother of his."

"When his brother arrived, he was finally beginning to come around and recognized him," Parmelee said.

He later told his rescuers that he could remember hearing the motors of the big tugs and thought sure he was a gonner as one of them was going to run over him during the night.

Parmelee said, these are just a few of the search and rescue operations he has been involved with in the past year.

when a vessel overturned early in the day, auxiliary members jumped overboard and helped a completely exhausted lady upright her sailboat.

Later in the day, they were still on patrol and noticed a small black speck on the horizon.

Further investigation led them to the sailor they aided earlier in the day. This time the woman was frantic as she had damaged her boom and had no control over her craft.

Parmelee said, "She thought sure she would end up in Cuba as she was heading out to sea and had no way of steering her craft and could do nothing but hold on."

On Jourdan River in Hancock County one afternoon last year, Parmelee received a call during a severe thunderstorm about a craft which had been disabled.

Luckily they had a radio and sought assistance. The Louisiana couple had rented a house on the river and gone out on a boating trip with their young children, and ran into trouble.

Parmelee was joined by auxiliary member Bob Simono, and they headed up the Jourdan to find the boat dead in the water.

Members of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Bay-Waveland Flotilla 33 stand at the stern of the Nau-Ti-Las, owned by Milt Parmelee, and they are always ready to render assistance to vessels in trouble. Among those participating in an exercise Wednesday on the Jourdan River are, from left, Parmelee, Flotilla 33 commander; Bob Roberti, past captain of Division 2 in the state of New Mexico; Wes Castaneda, rear commodore of the Eastern Sector of District 8; Maureen Roberti, vice-captain of Division 2; and Denna Castaneda, past commander of Flotilla 33. This group was joined by Bob Simono, operations staff officer and Frank Hopper, vice-commander of Flotilla 33 in the Seabelle. The auxiliary provides checks of a boat's safety equipment covering federal and state safety regulations, search and rescue and other boating-relation programs. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

In insert, Stonecipher flies over the Bay of St. Louis on Wednesday as he participates in an exercise over the islands from Dolphin to Grand Isle on a mission for the U.S. Park Service and National Oceanographic Administration. The flight was to check for dead sea mammals and sea turtle eggs. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas) for our organization and the keeping them operational."

"Many of the navigation aides, including buoys, are damaged by being run over or into. It is important for the Coast Guard to be notified by about boating safety. She added, "This is important, as there are many very young children in our area who operate boats. Youngsters remember the classes and many times remind parents when they violate safety rules which they have learned in the classes."

Jesse Stonecipher, communications officer for Flotilla 33 and also Division 3 air operations officer, frequently flies his private plane on Coast Guard-related missions.

Stonecipher and his plane are used for environmental patrols, search and rescue missions, indoctrination and training exercises for Coast Guard cadets and for training of aviators.

Parmelee emphasized, that recreational boaters should give a 'float' plan before they embark on a boating or fishing trip to a member of their family or neighbor.

"This helps if they run into trouble, and when overdue it gives search and rescue teams an idea as to where to begin looking for them," Parmelee said.

For any Coast Guard Auxiliary information on boating courses, advanced classes, safety checks, call 255-2098.

Communications

Communications play an important role in Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla missions. Bob Roberti, past captain of Division 2 in Mexico, checks the radio of the Nau-Ti-Las, owned by Milt Parmelee, commander of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Bay-Waveland Flotilla 33 on Wednesday during an exercise in the Bay of St. Louis. Roberti stressed the importance for boat owners to have good communications systems on their boats so they can call for assistance in case they run into trouble.

Waveland

New administration, new ideas spell change

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
The City of Waveland is moving forward with an energetic spirit these days.
"For the past six months," Mayor Stella Frilot said, "I have been trying to learn the job and find out where we are."
"Learning that job has involved addressing problems in a direct manner."

BEAUTIFICATION

The City of Waveland has seen many physical improvements in the past few months, beginning with the Hwy. 90 beautification project.

Members of the newly created Parks and Parkway Commission, under the leadership of Robert Haney, have pruned and seeded the medians along Hwy. 90 with intentions of landscaping the land.

The city street crews, with assistance from the Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson, borrowed some prison trustys and cut and edged the entire stretch of the highway.

The Elwood Bourgeois Park on Waveland and Central Avenues has also been spruced up by city workers. Trees were trimmed and the grounds cut and cleared.

The little league baseball diamond got new roofs on the dugouts and the bleachers were replanked and painted.

Ditch cleaning has been going on since day one of the new year, Frilot comments.

She admitted with the overwhelming amount of rainfall, work in every outdoor venture has been slowed, but she added, "We are systematically going through area by area until the entire city is completed."

FINANCIAL OUTLOOK

Financially, the city is beginning to see a variety of long term savings.

Frilot pointed out in the beginning of the year pumps, lift stations, water lines and sewer lines were breaking at an average of 28 per month.

That number, she reported, is now down to "maybe nine."

She explained, "Things were repaired by temporary solutions."

"Equipment was repaired and replaced and moved about with no system of inventory kept.

"Pumps would break, be replaced with others, repaired and then used when another broke. We did not know, if a piece of equipment was being repaired over and over for the same problem."

"There are now records of every piece of equipment the city owns so that now a decision can be made as to whether it is better to repair something or replace it."

Another money saving step involved the hiring of full time purchasing agent Jean Askew.

Every purchase the city makes is now tracked from the initial request to the selection for purchase to the final payment.

Several repeating term aldermen have commented on the savings they are now noticing in the monthly bills.

CITY HALL RENOVATION

The prima facia change in Waveland is the renovation of Waveland's City Hall and the creation of a city meeting room.

Ward 2 Alderman Bob Hubbard said with obvious pride, "It's beautiful."

"The complete interior has been renovated."

Space that was used as storage is now utilized as offices for the city administrator and her staff.

"The appearance is conducive to the promotion of business in a pleasant and professional atmosphere," Frilot stated.

The city meeting room for Waveland's four aldermen was once a storage area for pipes, tools and hardware.

It is now an area where there is plenty of seating and a speaker system for better acoustics. The board, seated at a long bench, faces the audience, enhancing the visual ability of those present.

The room also provides the aldermen with a space of their own, should they desire to meet with constituents.

Since the opening of the city meeting room, public attendance at the two monthly meetings has increased from few to many.

SEWER IMPROVEMENTS

The City of Waveland is taking steps to extend and improve sewer and water lines throughout the city and has just placed out bids on a $1.3 million project.

To Ward 1 Alderman Barbara Rappold, this is the city's most important improvement.

She states, "I'm happy to say that we have been successful in securing the necessary funds to continue our sewer and water expansion project."

"The people of Ward 1 (where the majority of the work is scheduled)

I have been patient and understanding while I worked diligently to procure this funding."

Bids were opened at the city's last meeting and it looks like our entire project came within the money."

"The bid will most probably be awarded at the first meeting in July and construction will start shortly thereafter."

"Putting in a sewer system is not easy, but I assure my constituents that it will be well worth the inconvenience."

Another move forward towards providing city services for all residents has been the "201 study."

This is a comprehensive plan of the city's drainage and service needs. It breaks down projected areas and then merges each specific group into the whole of Waveland.

The study is a breakthrough in that it is a map for all future development of services, it serves in pin-pointing trouble drainage areas and is necessary for federal and state funding.

POLICE DEPARTMENT

Waveland has always been known as a safe place to live. Violent crime is virtually unknown in this community of about 5,400.

Though it is obvious that the Waveland Police Department has been performing its job, the department has suffered in public relations.

Frilot says this is changing. "Within the last months, the police department public image has improved a great deal."

"I take my hat off to Police Chief Donald Dorn and to those officers who have tried hard to improve communication within the community."

"I ride with the officers at least once a week. Bob Hubbard has also done this."

"It is an experience which opens your eyes as to the stress and danger of the job."

"Their job is more than difficult, it is life threatening and it is all done in our behalf."

FIRE DEPARTMENT

Frilot speaks about the city fire department as top notch.

"We have a fire chief (David Garcia) who runs his department efficiently and effectively."

"These men, as the policemen, place their lives on the line for us every day."

"They receive too little recognition for the service they provide for us."

Waveland has also improved on its relationships with its surrounding neighbors, Frilot reports.

"I admire Mayor (Edward) Favre (of Bay St. Louis) for the things he has brought to his town."

"I would love to lower utility rates like Eddie has done."

According to the Waveland mayor, the city also has an excellent rapport with the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

"Every request with which I have approached them, has been granted. They have lent to Waveland equipment and men during emergencies and are always willing to cooperate."

"Eddie Murtagh (county tax assessor) has bent over backwards to help us straighten out our 911 address difficulties."

Frilot adds that the Diamondhead community and Property Owners Association president Paul Montjoy has also been a good neighbor, offering to help Waveland in any way possible.

Within the next few months, Hubbard expressed a desire to see the Waveland Civic Center renovated, as planned.

Rappold said, "I look forward to having the whole first ward with sewer service and increased water pressure within the year."

Frilot stated she would like to see something done to bring Coleman Avenue back to the thriving thoroughfare it once was.

She also mentioned she is presently looking into the possibility of bringing a marina to Waveland to be established at the end of Coleman Avenue.

Diamondhead

Steady growth in construction, population noted

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
As of this year, construction initiated at the Diamondhead community is in excess of $4 million.

Diamondhead Property Owners Association manager Paul Montjoy reported the first months of the new year were slow because of the excessive rainfall, but "things are beginning to look up as we move further into the summer months."

"There are 27 new homes under construction. Thirty-two homes in the process of adding on or remodeling. Eleven home applications are pending permits."

"And as of the month of June, a total of 21 home applications have been submitted to the association."

The Diamondhead community was first developed in 1970 and the growth continues in a steady flow.

"Growth presents a constant adjustment problem," Montjoy explains. A gradual increase in services must be maintained, along with the daily upkeep.

"While no major problems have occurred," Montjoy added, "we are still gradually increasing our security by (number of) men and hours patrolling."

"The fire department continuously upgrades its equipment and manpower" in order to continue matching the community's needs.

Montjoy anticipates an expenditure of $500,000 this year in road paving, additional drainage and repairs and remodeling of present facilities.

"On July 4th," Montjoy stated, "our north recreational center will be reopening after remodeling and construction of a swimming pool and bath house."

Diamondhead plans to have the new guard house/welcome center finished by this year.

Expansion of the golf courses was placed on hold, he explained, because of the rains. The association had to use some of those monies marked for expansion to repair and maintain the present courses.

The Diamondhead community may witness some larger additions soon, for commercial developments are planned for both sides of Diamondhead entrance boulevard.

Montjoy said a professional plaza is planned to be built along with a retirement/nursing home. The buildings are to be located to either side of the I-10 exit.

Diamondhead Academy will be opening its door this fall to a 100% increase in enrollment as the children enter a new school building.

A 400-seat auditorium is planned by the school to be completed sometime next year. The auditorium is presently being considered as a home for the newly formed Diamondhead Arts Council, which is a group of volunteers with intentions of promoting and bringing cultural events into the community.

The Diamondhead Airport has a new fixed based operator, related Montjoy, "bringing an extension of services to the air field."

"We also plan to have the runway repaved and lighting installed within this year."

The Yacht Club elevator and ground level entrance is expected to be let for bids in July, and plans for extended electrical service within the marina for the servicing of larger boats is projected for next year.

Montjoy says the association is facing those challenges presented by the increased number of residents within the community as an ongoing process.

Hall Craft Woods

Hall Craft Woods, 10139 Bayou View Drive, Bay St. Louis, sells crafts and supplies and is a wood products manufacturer.

Owners Jan and Brad Hall started the business in 1989, after Mr. Hall was released from the hospital. He had been in for a carotid artery bypass, which was complicated by two massive strokes.

In addition to those conditions, Mr. Hall has scleroderma, Reynaud's phenomenon and cold urticaria, connective tissue and vascular diseases. These medical conditions have not stopped him and his wife, a nurse, from establishing their business. In 1990, they made more than $6,000 at art shows, festivals and to jelly and candy manufacturers who use their wooden baskets to package products.

With the help of a Small Business Administration Handicapped Assistance loan and their friends, the Halls started construction in April on a 40-by-78-foot shop, where they plan to hire handicapped workers to turn out and ship the handmade woodcraft products they sell across the United States and throughout the world.

They can be reached at 467-3943.

CALGON CARBON CORPORATION
An Equal Opportunity Employer

CALGON CARBON CORPORATION. The world's leading manufacturer and marketer of activated carbon is constructing a new plant in Pearlinton, Mississippi to meet the growing worldwide demand for its activated carbon products. The employees at our Pearl River plant will work in a highly automated, computer controlled facility and the work environment will be one of team manufacturing requiring employees to work in cooperative groups. We are looking for people to help us achieve our goal of producing high quality activated carbon products that meet customer needs and requirements.

We expect our people to:

- Become well trained and technically capable
- Interact and communicate well, both individually and as members of a team

We will select people to work with us who:

- Are dedicated to learning and willing to perform a variety of work activities
- Are good team players

The following manufacturing assignments will be available:

Production Technicians

Production employees will operate and control computer driven manufacturing equipment and heavy machinery. They will monitor product quality, physically inspect equipment and perform routine maintenance. Production also includes packaging and warehousing responsibilities.

Electrical/Instrument and Mechanical Maintenance Technicians

Maintenance employees will repair and maintain all types of plant equipment including heavy machinery, pollution control equipment and complex furnaces. Special instrumentation and computer skills are required to qualify for Maintenance positions.

Chemical Laboratory Technicians

Chemical Laboratory employees will perform physical and chemical testing of raw materials, in-process and finished products. Other activities include regulatory, standards and audits, and analytical support. Chemical Laboratory Technicians must have industrial lab experience and skills.

Candidates must be 18 years old and have legal proof of the right to work in the U.S. Previous experience in a manufacturing environment is preferred. We offer excellent salary and career opportunities, challenging work, a generous benefit package and a safe working environment.

Interested parties are invited to apply according to the schedule below:

Hancock County Vocational Technical Center, 7180 Airport Road, Bay St. Louis

THE SEA COAST ECHO: HANCOCK TODAY, JUNE 30, 1991

Hancock Bank

Financial institution nears a century of growth, progress

BY JANET MCQUEEN

One of Mississippi's largest banks calls Bay St. Louis home.

Hancock Bank, listed among Veribanc's Top 50 Safest Banks in the United States, was formed August 29, 1899 by 19 local citizens who met in the Hancock County Courthouse.

A booming sawmill industry surrounded the county seat of Bay St. Louis, a center of commerce which boasted a U. S. Customs Office—but no bank.

By October, The Hancock County Bank opened for business with $10,000 in capital and $8,277.41 in deposits. A small frame building joining the St. Joseph Academy property on South Beach was leased for $7 a month.

Leo W. Seal Jr.

Plans were soon made for the building where the current bank is housed today, on the corner of South Beach and Main Street. In 1900 it was the first two-story brick building in Bay St. Louis and also contained the post office and U. S. Customs office.

The bank's phenomenal growth was a sure and steady one, according to long-time President Leo Seal Jr., who now serves as chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

Seal and his father, the late Leo Seal Sr., together guided the bank through 58 years of growth and progress.

Though the Seal name is synonymous with Hancock Bank, the modest CEO is quick to point out that his family was not among the original 19 founders. Those first names, such as Dunbar, Keller and Toulme, are familiar to today's residents as names of Bay St. Louis streets.

The first 33 years of operation saw three bank presidents at the helm, Peter Hellwege (1899-1907), Eugene Roberts (1908-1918) and Horatio S. Weston (1918-1932).

The three early presidents saw the institution through national periods of financial panic, and watched it grow stronger while neighboring banks fell victim to closure.

It is during this period, Seal said, Hancock Bank may have been the only Mississippi bank to conduct branch banking on a boat. The Pearlington Branch operated one day a week out of the mail boat Margaret.

The manager would board the L&N train in Bay St. Louis each Friday to southwest Hancock County where he would catch the mail boat servicing the sawmill community. He would issue cashier's checks, handle deposits and withdrawals and even make loans on the floating branch bank.

It is but one example of a service-oriented financial institution meeting the needs of its customers.

A full-scale insurance department, now Hancock Insurance Agency, was also acquired during this time.

Weston Lumber Company president Horatio Weston assumed his position in 1918. One of his first actions was to hire Leo Seal Sr., who had worked at the Weston mill for many years, beginning at age 11 when he earned 20 cents a day.

Seal, who had also worked his way through college, was charged with running the bank's operations.

During the next few years, a branch office was opened in Long Beach and a two-story building was erected on the beach in Pass Christian. The Bay St. Louis office was remodeled and an annex added, and the Pearlington branch was moved to Logtown. The wheels of progress were turning.

Continuing to support the local economy, the bank purchased the entire issue of Hancock County bonds to guarantee construction of the Old Spanish Trail (forerunner of Highway 90) and financed the old steam ferry operating between Bay St. Louis and Henderson Point prior to construction of the Bay Bridge in 1928.

In spite of the Great Depression, the bank's assets in 1927 had grown to $3.5 million.

The younger Seal lauds his father's greatest accomplishment, guiding Hancock Bank safely through 1929-32, a period when 162 Mississippi banks fell by the wayside.

When the last of Gulfport's three banks failed to open in 1931, Hancock Bank seized the opportunity to branch out further, which the elder Seal related as "one of the best moves we have ever made" in a letter to the state superintendent of banking.

As Harrison County deposits surpassed those of Hancock, the bank's name was amended to drop the word "county" to become simply Hancock Bank.

During World War II, the bank was one of few to pay interest on the entire balance of savings accounts.

Entering the 1950's, drive-through banking was offered, the first branch was opened within a city, and the bank was named trustee for a $9.2 million bond issue to construct a toll bridge across the Bay.

Another monstrous challenge was the relocation of landowners as NASA acquired 140,000 acres of land to construct what is now Stennis Space Center.

Sen. John Stennis, who was instrumental in the facility's locating in Hancock and Pearl River counties, relied on Leo Seal Sr. to assist him in promoting a smooth transition for the displaced landowners. Quoting Stennis, "...during his entire lifetime, Leo Seal Sr. went right down the line, encouraging the people there and helping them and, at the same time, cooperating with the problem we had of getting this moon-shot lined up."

When Mr. Seal passed away in 1963, he had guided the bank from a $1.7 million institution in 1932 to one with assets of more than $41.8 million.

Upon his death, the presidency was assumed by his son, Leo Jr., who had joined the bank as a clerk in the proof department and had subsequently worked in every other department.

Father and son, Leo W. Seal Sr. and Leo W. Seal Jr.

"Every part of our operation is an important one," he noted.

Seal, a graduate of Mississippi State University, finished the School of Banking at LSU and senior bank study at Harvard School of Business.

One of his first accomplishments at Hancock Bank was to establish the first branch on a NASA installation in the United States. The action was unprecedented, and took nearly a year to finalize.

Additional branches soon dotted the entire coastline, and One Hancock Plaza in Gulfport gave a new dimension to the Coast's skyline.

New services were initiated: Hancock Travel Agency, Hancock Mortgage Corporation, Harrison Finance Company, a credit life insurance company, an electronic processing center and a manufacturing partnership.

The 1970's brought mergers with long-established financial institutions like Bank of Commerce in Poplarville and Bank of Picayune. Pascagoula-Moss Point Bank merged in 1985, adding 11 branches in Jackson County.

Seal tirelessly promoted the transfer of the Port of Gulfport from city to state ownership, vastly increasing economic activity at the coast landmark.

He was also instrumental in convincing the state highway department to four-lane U. S. 90 from Bay St. Louis to the test site. He encouraged the board of supervisors to expand its airport facilities, an effort that ultimately resulted in the construction of Stennis Air Port.

Following Hurricane Camille, Seal offered the Small Business Administration the top three floors of the Gulfport bank building to take applications for assistance from the devastated Coast's residents.

He assembled officials from all Coast communities to devise a plan to work together to seek assistance from the legislature. Rebuilding was accomplished with a helping hand from Hancock Bank.

The largest flurry of merger activity occurred last year, beginning with Metropolitan National Bank of Biloxi/Ocean Springs and the Poplarville branch of Unifirst Bank for Savings. The bank's first venture into out-of-state banking was the purchase of American Bank and Trust of Baton Rouge, La., which added 15 branches.

Fifty Hancock Bank branches span four counties in South Mississippi, and total assets approach $1.5 billion. The payroll lists some 700 employees.

Hancock Bank's success lies in its tireless efforts throughout the years to encourage its surrounding economy, exemplified by buying bonds for what is now Alcan Cable, the St. Stanislaus dormitories or the Bay Bridge; or lesser known ways, as in the purchase of rams and Bremer cattle to boost the farm economy.

The philosophy remains the same as in 1899—stability, personal integrity and public service.

Hancock School District

New facility, expanded curriculum make brighter future for students

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Hancock County School District is "big business," claims Superintendent Terrell Randolph.

"Outside of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA)," Randolph emphasizes, "we are Hancock County's largest employer."

According to the superintendent, the school district employs in excess of 300 people. Hancock County School District recently held a public hearing on its 1991-92 school budget. The $11.5 million budget showed no raise in taxes even though the district anticipates a $137,000 less in state funding this year.

SURVIVING CUTS

"This past year or two, the district has suffered more because of the state cuts (totaling $200,000)," Randolph explained. "But unlike many school districts, we did not lay off workers. We cut positions, consolidated jobs and moved personnel around."

"An example would be Mr. (Donald) Hillman. I don't plan to fill his position as administrative principal (at Hancock High School)."

Fifty percent of his work is in instructional management. He will continue that program, along with the added duties of transportation supervisor.

"His duties and responsibilities as principal will be redistributed to the junior and senior high school principals."

"By cutting back additional personnel and maintaining a very strict budget in operations and maintenance, I think we can hold out; primarily because we see an increase in industrial and residential construction."

"In 1975 the district was on the bottom in scores. We are now in the upper echelons in scores."

— Randolph

POPULATION GROWTH

Randolph believes a turnaround in the economy is on its way in Hancock County. "By all projections, the Hancock County population will show the greatest increase in growth in the state through the year 2010."

Since 1980 the school district has increased in size by 40 percent. Student enrollment increased by eight percent this past year alone.

The only crisis Randolph can see is if student enrollment increases to the point that the district must hire more teachers.

Terrell Randolph

A financial stronghold for the school district lies in its 16th Section land leases and the business turnaround which occurred following the 1978 state implemented 16th Section Reform Act.

Randolph states, "In 1975 the district was receiving $400 a year on 11,000 acres of land."

"Hancock school district was first in the state to begin renegotiation of land leases immediately after passage of the act. Within the first two to three years, land revenues increased ten fold."

"It was a potential money source which was being neglected through poor management."

As of 1990, the district received $77,000 in 16th Section revenues.

CURRICULUM

The Hancock County School District claims some of the highest scholastic scores along the coast.

"We have the greatest instruction," Randolph claims. "In 1975 the district was on the bottom in scores. We are now in the upper echelons in scores."

"We offer our students the widest range in curriculum ever in the district's history."

"New programs will open new doors," Randolph adds. The district is working this year with the Bay/Waveland School Board in a cooperative effort to share class offerings.

"Our curriculum is wide-ranging, and the new physical facilities of the high school and the vo-tech school offer the students a quality environment."

Among those, Bay High School will offer second year art, third year French, marketing, public speaking and drama classes to Hancock students. Hancock High School will offer anatomy, calculus, German and aerospace classes to Bay/Waveland students.

VO-TECH TRAINING

The superintendent explained the residents of the county voted to support the construction of the new high school by voting in a $10 million bond issue.

Total expenditures were $12.2 million, with $1.2 million going to the other schools within the district.

Hancock County School District board members pointed out that though the district has witnessed the opening of the new high school, it has managed to balance the budget with a little savings left over. The district is also seeing physical improvements to each of their three elementary schools.

CHAPTER I

Randolph discussed a growing trend in education toward preparing children at an early age to attend school. That preparation comes from within the home, and Hancock County School District is executing a course of action to address the need.

Through the federally supported Chapter I Program, the district is implementing a

Redditt Pool and Spa Supplies

Redditt Pool and Spa Supplies, located 1060-B Highway 90 in Bay St. Louis, has been serving the needs of customers since 1986.

They offer a full line of retail pool and spa chemicals and equipment; above-ground pools, acrylic spas, patio and exercise pools; weekly swimming pool maintenance, lines replacement, pool painting and equipment repairs; and free water analysis and advice.

Owners Dick and Johnnie Redditt have a staff of five ready to advise customers and handle almost any pool or spa problem.

Over the past five years, Redditt Pool and Spa Supplies has developed its retail operation to include all facets of pool and spa care. They offer a weekly full pool maintenance service so the homeowner can enjoy his pool over the weekend.

They are master Sun pool product dealers, so they can offer the lowest prices available on pool chemicals.

The store displays and stocks most needed pool and spa items. The owners hope this will encourage more people to shop and save locally.

They can be reached at 467-3818.

Fabian's Ocean Gifts Joyce's Tropic Casuals

The most complete line of swimwear on the Mississippi Gulf Coast is available at Joyce's Tropic Casuals, owned by Bay St. Louis resident Joyce Buquoi. The adjacent Fabian's Ocean Gifts features T-shirts, souvenirs, seashells, corals, jewelry and accessories.

The businesses are located at 230 East Beach, Long Beach. Buquoi worked in retail business in Bay St. Louis until 1-10 opened, when she relocated the family-owned/operated store to Long Beach.

"We feel the people of Hancock County are a vital part of our customers and we want to remind them that we are in Long Beach," said Buquoi.

Bay Cove Harbour

Bay Cove Harbour, 700 Felicity St., Bay St. Louis, is being developed from its present deep water marina into a final destination family-oriented resort complex with such attractions as an equestrian park and stables, 300- to 400-room hotel/convention center, 18-hole professional golf course, yacht and country clubs, shopping village, complete recreational and aquatic activities, and a dock-side casino.

Originally conceived in 1980 as a setting for New Orleans-type condominiums and a deep-water marina, changing market conditions and a sagging economically prompted a change in plans. With all utilities in place, the site is ready to begin the planned development.

Lambert Land Company owns the development. Charles Lambert, vice president and CEO of the company, is in charge of the Bay Cove Harbour development.

Lambert said, "Lambert Land Company is a community-oriented company gearing to continue with its commitment to a local labor force, purchasing and tax input."

Bay Cove Harbour may be reached at 467-9257.

Diamondhead Day Care Inc.

Diamondhead Day Care Inc., established in 1989, offers child care services for children six weeks to age 12.

Pre-school and structured activities are included in the curriculum.

Anne Cordova is owner/director, while Terri Willson serves as assistant director. Teachers and aides include Stacey Anderson, Jan Hill, Jennifer Brignac, Chantell Dastugue and Michelle Williams.

Loraine Flower Shop, 317 Ulman Avenue, Bay St. Louis, 316 Davis Avenue, Pass Christian, and #1 Hancock Plaza, Gulfport, has served the area since 1902 as a retail florist.

The shop was founded by John Bavin Adams in Pass

Loraine Flower Shop

Christian as a small nursery and flower business. In 1916, William F. Adams Sr. and his new bride, Lena Loraine Robinson, joined Adams' father in the shop, where they worked until 1926 before establishing their own flower shop and acquiring the greenhouses started by John B. Adams. J.B. Adams and Sons Nursery became Adams' Loraine Flower Shop.

The business has expanded over the years and now includes shops in Gulfport, Pass Christian and Bay St. Louis. John Robinson and Ginger Adams are the owners of the Bay St. Louis shop. Both are certified as "Master Designers" by Florists' Transworld Delivery Association (FTD).

The Bay St. Louis shop can be reached at 467-6507.

Haas & Haas, Attorneys

and Myrtle Jane Haas, manager/bookkeeper.

The practice began in 1957 across from the county courthouse in the old Drake building. It closed for two years when Michael Haas Sr. joined the Army in intelligence, then reopened and has offered continuous service in the general practice of law to the present.

In 1965, the offices were moved to Court Street, where they remained until 1987, when it moved to Second Street, opposite Bay Technical Associates. Only a few businesses were located in the immediate area at the time, but several new businesses have since opened, adding to the city's steady growth.

The Haas family is a pioneer Hancock family, having established here prior to the Civil War, and is known for dedication and hard work, according to the senior Haas.

The firm can be reached at 467-6574.

Magic Mirror Hair Fashions

sales of Matrix and Vavoom products.

Naomi Heitzmann, who has been in the beauty business for 16 years, owned the Magic Mirror from 1980 to 1982, then closed it to stay home and care for her child until August 1986, when she reopened the salon.

She said, "I love being a hair stylist because I love being with people and making them look their best. I keep up with the education in beauty awareness by attending beauty shows each year."

Her motto is: "How old you are is your business. How young you look is our business."

Piper's Grill

Full service, casual dining is offered at Piper's Grill, located at 527 Highway 90, Waveland.

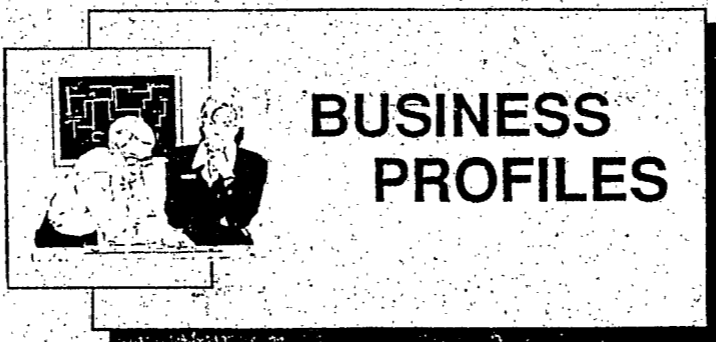

The restaurant relocated to Waveland from Long Beach in January of 1990, because owners Jim and Carrie Piper felt Hancock County would enjoy a bright economic future.

Banquet dining is available with ample seating for civic organizations or private parties.

Luncheon specials are offered weekly, in addition to a menu of seafood, chicken and beef favorites.

Piper's Grill's telephone number is 467-1787.

BUSINESS PROFILES

Eastover Bank for Savings

Eastover Bank for Savings, located 827 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, was established statewide in July, 1986. The Bay St. Louis office was established in July, 1987.

Some of the services offered include:

- Complete banking services — Totally Free Checking*, NOW Accounts, savings accounts, money fund accounts, certificates of deposit, IRAs, direct deposit, ATMs, safety deposit boxes;
- Business loans for working capital, equipment, inventory, acquisition, refinancing;
- Residential real estate loans for construction, mortgages, refinancing, home equity, remodeling;
- Consumer loans — auto and personal;
- Business capabilities — commercial checking, commercial deposit, employer direct deposit, electronic funds transfer;
- Commercial real estate loans for construction, permanent financing, acquisition, refinancing.

Its staff includes: Sammy G. Robbins, president; Pam Bilbo, office supervisor; Cathy G. Perniciari, head teller; Juanita Pettit, loan secretary; Cindy Ladner, Denise Nichols and Lori Stefano, tellers.

Eastover Bank for savings is a state-chartered, federally-insured financial institution serving Mississippi with 31 offices in 20 cities and towns.

The bank was formed July 31, 1986, as the result of a merger between Depositors' Savings Bank and Peoples Bank of Mississippi, N.A. This merger was the first time in Mississippi history that a commercial bank and a savings and loan joined forces. The bank's background provides the unique strengths and service flexibility of both a commercial bank and a savings and loan.

The Bay St. Louis office was acquired from Security Savings and Loan Association in July, 1987, along with five other offices, enabling Eastover Bank to offer Coastwide banking from Bay St. Louis to Pascagoula. Eastover Bank has assets in excess of $500 million and is federally insured by the FDIC.

In August, 1988, the Bay St. Louis office moved to an expanded and completely remodeled facility at 827 Highway 90. The office is equipped with a drive-through and an Eastover Bank 24-hour automated teller machine (ATM). As a member of GulfNet and Cirrus regional automated teller networks, Eastover Bank is able to provide its customers with 24-hour access to their accounts from locations across the nation.

They may be reached at 467-8282.

Financial Services Corporation

Financial Services Corporation was organized in 1990 to provide high quality financial services to Coast residents and businesses.

Services offered include residential and commercial mortgage loans; single premium deferred annuities; life, accident and health insurance and business consulting.

Bay St. Louis resident Basil Kennedy is president and owner.

"We strive to offer excellent service with competitive pricing and use our contacts with many companies to get the best product for our customers' needs," said Kennedy.

"There is no charge for an initial consultation and all charges will be fully disclosed to clients before there is any obligation."

Kennedy has more than 18 years of experience in the financial services industry. He is a life-long resident of Hancock County and is active in many civic organizations.

Financial Services Corporation is located at 101-C Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, telephone 467-5793.

Bookends Bookstore

Bookends Bookstore, located 111 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, was established in 1987.

Bookends, a small store with an amiable atmosphere, sells new, used and collectible books, greeting cards, and books included on school reading lists. Bookends also has a paperback trade service, and sells games, toys and unusual gift items. Orders are placed and received within a week and special orders are welcome.

The store is the local drop-off point for the Children's Book Bank. Used children's books are distributed to children through various social service agencies. Donations are welcome.

Owner Susan Daigre said, "We take pride in growing with and serving the community."

They can be reached at 467-9623.

Ellen Kane Gifts

Ellen Kane Gifts, 398 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, has served the community since 1974.

The shop offers a vast inventory of unusual, practical and exciting gifts and decorative accessories at affordable prices. Numerous paper lines are handled, including Crane and Caspari, as well as more than 10 greeting card lines.

Ellen Kane also carries items from the English company Crabtree and Evelyn, which offers wonderful toiletries and delicious cookies, vinegars, jams and preserves.

Shattuck TV and Satellite

Shattuck TV and Satellite, 1804 Nicholson Avenue, Waveland, offers television, VCR, satellite, microwave and stereo repair; and television, VCR and satellite sales. Shattuck is a Zenith and Uniden dealer.

The business started in 1971 under the home of Frank Shattuck in Waveland. With the continual increase in business, larger facilities were needed, so the business was moved to its present location.

When Mr. Shattuck decided to venture into other fields, he offered the business to Allyn Combs, who has managed it to the present.

Combs said, "As a Christian businessman, I believe in honest sales and repairs at reasonable prices. We offer 90-day lay-aways on almost all services."

"When you walk into our shop, that is exactly what it is. There's no showroom overhead to pass on to the customer."

Hancock Medical Center offers quality health care

Hancock Medical Center, the county's primary health care facility, has more than kept pace with the changing times. In 1960 Hancock General Hospital opened its doors, replacing the Kings Daughters Hospital which once served the area. The original 36-bed facility expanded to 56 beds in 1964 due to an increased demand for services.

Hancock Medical Center

However, by mid-1985 the leadership at Hancock General Hospital recognized the expanded health care needs of a growing community, and built a more modern hospital complex with extended medical services.

Early in 1987 Hancock County proudly dedicated Hancock Medical Center, a 65-bed acute care facility, fully accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospital Organizations.

Hancock Medical Center offers 24-hour emergency services as well as inpatient and outpatient services. The physicians and staff provide a full range of medical specialties to meet the patient's total health care needs in all areas of medical care, including surgery, gynecology, obstetrics, oncology, internal medicine, urology, cardiology, anesthesiology, pathology, radiology and family practice. With state-of-the-art laproscopic procedures and noninvasive diagnostic equipment, the Hancock Medical Center surgery department lays the groundwork for virtually any surgical procedure. Staff physicians are specialized in vascular, orthopedic, thoracic, cardiovascular and general surgery.

The Hancock Medical Center radiology department is one of the Coast's leading diagnostic facilities. Featuring the latest in x-ray and radiological technology, this unit provides accredited mammography, CT scanning and angiography. The radiology unit is equipped for all gastrointestinal, neurological and ultrasound studies.

The hospital's physical therapy department provides a wide range of treatments tailored to the specific needs of the patient. With a patient/nurse ratio of two to one, patients can be certain they are receiving the most attentive, personalized care possible in Hancock Medical Center's intensive care unit. A staff of ACLS certified nurses monitor both ICU and floor patients 24 hours a day, and the unit is fully equipped with an external pacemaker system to handle emergency situations.

The cardiopulmonary department works with both inpatients and outpatients to help them recover from lung and heart disorders, and provides patients with stress testing, Holter monitoring, echo-cardiograms. Patients also receive full respiratory breathing treatments and arterial blood gas analyses.

Hancock Medical Center is committed to providing a full range of needed health care services to the residents of its service area. The telephone number is 467-9081.

are unable to devote the time to educational play, or because they, themselves, lack the knowledge of how to funnel the child's energy towards learning, the results indicate a need.

Parental-educational skills will be taught both in the classroom and through at-home visits.

The Early Reading Program, supported by First Lady Barbara Bush, is an example of the idea. The premise is by reading to a child, interest in reading is aroused.

Through this program, the district intends to address those problems educators come to experience later on in the educational system.

Board member Carol Bustetter stated, "Programs and services should be characterized by early intervention, coordination of services by related agencies and multiple funding sources."

ATTENDANCE

While the district supports early education attempts, it also acknowledges the immediate concerns of average daily attendance (ADA) and drop-out rates.

Average daily attendance is how the state judges the amount of funding a district is paid per student, not how many are registered in the school.

District board member Lennette Necaise commented, "The school system receives monies for teacher units based on average daily attendance. We rank near the bottom in ADA, in all the districts within Mississippi. By hiring a full-time attendance officer to serve our school district, we plan to raise the ADA."

Board president Frank Miller added, "The state has reduced the number of unexcused absences for the year from 20 to 12. This coming year, we plan to work on cutting down on excessive absences."

Thomas supports improvement of ADA and addressed the need for cooperation between the school and home environment saying, "I would like to see improvement in the ADA for the benefit of the students and to the non-abuser, this whole country would benefit."

Randolph states the school district has volunteer tutors who come to the schools and help students through difficult community involvement in the past few years by businesses, as well as individuals.

"We have more than 80 school adopters, who not only help financially, but also donate could only offer physics every other year because we did not have enough students requesting it to deem it financially viable."

Randolph sees a bright future for the Hancock County School District and for the students who are educated in it.

As times change in the community, and the job market varies, so will the offering of the school district.

The challenges are immense, but the district does not flinch not at mere challenges, Randolph declares.

Hancock County Tourism and Gaming

The Hancock County Tourism and Gaming Commission was formed in February 1991 to promote economic development, higher wages and a better quality of life for local citizens through increased tourism from gaming.

There are currently 136 active, dues paying members (including 82 business owners in Hancock County).

Bill Lady serves as chairman; Donald Saucier, vice-chairman; Allyson Kellar, secretary; and Neville Jacob, treasurer.

All business owners and private citizens interested in pursuing similar goals are invited to attend Tourism and Gaming Commission meetings and join as members.

For additional information, contact Lady at 467-9261.

The Princess Shop

The Princess Shoppe, located in Bay Shopping Center, was established in 1970.

The store specializes in total looks in junior and missy fashions; making available one-stop shopping. A customer can, through the knowledge of qualified personnel, put together all of the accessories with the garment to create a total and complete look.

The shop covers the New York and Dallas apparel markets to make sure that they are always stocked with the latest and best quality fashions.

The Princess Shoppe offers sizes 2 to 24 in a range of prices to satisfy the needs in our area. Many out-of-town customers continue to make the Princess Shoppe one of their favorite places to visit.

They carry daytime wear, sport clothes, formals, and special occasion clothing. In addition, one of the Gulf Coast's widest selections of accessories including jewelry, scarves, gloves, hats, handbags, hose, lingerie and dyeable shoes are available.

There is also a boutique selection for brides and their attendants. Along with clothing and accessories is a most unique collection of basket ware and beaded jewelry imported from South Africa.

The store is owned by Princess Fahey, with Jane Ann Fahey serving as buyer and manager.

They opened their doors in August of 1970. They celebrated their 20th anniversary last year. The shop has enlarged three times allowing for more activities, such as trunk shows and fashion shows, and throughout the store merchandise is displayed on interesting pieces of family antique furniture.

The Princess Shoppe Teen Board is celebrated its 10th anniversary last year.

The Teen Board grows more popular each year and helps young ladies on the coast build higher self-esteem by teaching them modeling, poise and etiquette. In addition, the Teen Board also participates in many local and coast-wide fund raising projects primarily benefiting education. Their phone number is 467-9338.

Louise's Gifts

Louise's Gifts, Highway 90, Bay St. Louis has offered homemade pralines, shells and gift items since 1988.

In addition, the store sells rattan, wicker, Mexican imports and concrete statuary items.

Louise's began when Ulman Avenue in Bay St. Louis was Highway 90, according to owner Louise Taillac. The building was destroyed by Hurricane Camille and was rebuilt "bigger and better" by Taillac and her late husband, Roland.

Mrs. Taillac still works seven days a week. Her pralines have earned her the title "Praline Queen of the South" and she was selected to cook pralines for the President in Washington, D. C. during the country's bicentennial.

Louise's Gift Store may be reached at 467-3649.

Landrum's Recycling Services

A curbside recycling service is offered by Hancock County residents Tom and Cindy Landrum.

"When we started this business in October of 1990, we had very few residents getting involved," said Tom Landrum.

"The number has grown a great deal since then. We provide a bin for residents to make it easy to recycle and collect anything out of the home that the market accepts."

"This is something everyone needs to get involved in, and we hope Hancock County is the first county to have a voluntary curbside recycling program."

Landrum's Recycling Services can be reached at 467-0478.

Gateway Body & Paint

Gateway Body & Paint, located at 1002 Old Spanish Trail in Waveland, has been in business since 1980.

They offer complete automotive body repair and painting with Dupont Cronar paints and clearcoats, and specialize in quality collision and frame repairs. They also provide vinyl tops, headliners, body side moldings, pinstripping, installation of autoglass and clean and detail all repaired vehicles. Owners are Wes and Kathy Ziegler. Collision repair specialist Eric Kinard has worked at Gateway 9½ years. Charles LaFontaine is also a collision repair specialist and has worked at Gateway seven years. Paint prep and detail department staff members Edward LeBant and Richard Leonard both have attended Dupont's Atlanta Training Center.

Gateway started in Bay St. Louis in 1980. To expand, Gateway in Waveland was opened in 1983. To keep up with the industry, Gateway has expanded several times over the years, and currently utilizes a Chief E-Z Liner frame machine, which actually reverses the effects of collision damage.

Dupont's Cronar and Chromabase paint systems provide exceptional color match and finish in the refinishing process, while the Viking commercial spray booth completes the process by allowing good lighting for perfect color matching and trash-free paint refinishing.

A video training system allows the employees to keep up to date with repair techniques and new vehicle repair procedures.

Wes Ziegler said, "Our greatest concern at Gateway is to repair your vehicle to factory standards. We want to provide a service that will relieve you of your concerns when you've had the unfortunate circumstance of an automobile accident."

The telephone number is 467-2648.

First two-story brick building in Bay St. Louis. Occupied by Hancock County Bank in 1900.

In 1899 a group of 19 business people sat down to organize the first bank on the western Mississippi Coast. They had in mind a bank that would be willing to put faith in the individual and at the same time work side by side with local families to help the young Gulf Coast grow. With a small frame building, $10,000 in capital and deposits of $8277.41 on opening day, Hancock Bank began.

Now, Hancock Bank has grown to become south Mississippi's largest locally owned bank, with assets over 1 billion dollars. With over 50 locations throughout the area, Hancock Bank continues to provide the most comprehensive and convenient financial services from Bay St. Louis to Pascagoula.

GE's Pearlington facility is one of the country's most automated.

GE Plastics— Committed To A Future in Hancock County

General Electric... How it all began

The story of GE began in 1878 when America's greatest inventive genius, Thomas A. Edison, succeeded in making an incandescent lamp burn for 40 hours. Edison located his small Edison Electric Company in Schenectady, N.Y., and in 1892 it was combined with the Thomas-Houston Company of Lynn, Mass., and the new company became the General Electric Company.

By the 1920's GE had become known as a leader in the electrical field. Since most of its products were made for industry, the GE name was not well-known to the general public. In the late 1920's, the decision was made to focus on the consumer market and, for the first time, a complete line of home appliances was manufactured. This established the GE name in millions of homes.

JC Keith, technician, operates control board at GE's SAN facility.

Today GE is a corporation of 300,000 employees worldwide. Its current products and services include lamps, space satellites, broadcasting (NBC), aerospace and defense electronics, transportation equipment, plastics, medical equipment, major appliances and financial services.

GE Plastics... What we do

GE Plastics, headquartered in Pittsfield, Mass., is one of 13 major businesses within the General Electric Company and is the world leader in engineering thermoplastics. Some of the products we market and sell are: LEXAN®, NORYL®, PREVEX®, ULTEM®, AND CYCOLAC®. These products make GE Plastics the world's largest full-service manufacturer and supplier of engineering resins.

They go into almost everything we touch in the course of our daily lives. Automobiles, telephones, refrigerators, homes, computers, children's toys, and many other items would all be significantly different without the plastics we or our competitors produce and market.

In the United States, GE Plastics has manufacturing sites in Alabama, New York, Indiana, West Virginia, Illinois, Tennessee, California and, of course, Mississippi. GE also has production facilities in several foreign countries including Canada, The Netherlands, Australia, Japan, Brazil, Mexico, Austria, Scotland, France and South Korea. With sales offices in more than 50 countries and on five continents, it's easily seen that GE Plastics is truly competing on a global scale and GE's commitment to each of its sites and to the areas in which they are located is a strong one.

The Bay St. Louis site... Our history

The site in the Port Bienville Industrial Park, Pearlington, was selected by Borg-Warner Chemicals back in 1979. Construction began in April 1980 and the plant was in operation by the end of 1981. Estimated production at that time was 80 million pounds a year on the two lines.

In 1986, a third line began operation, increasing the plant's capacity to 130 million pounds per year. During this same time, a new plant was built to produce a product called PREVEX. It began operation in mid-1987 and increased the number of employees from 45 to 75.

In 1988, the General Electric Company purchased the Chemicals Division of Borg-Warner and integrated it with GE Plastics. Due to excess capacity, the new facility was shut down. All personnel from this facility were absorbed into the rest of the site or transferred to other GE Plastics' locations.

In 1990, General Electric entered into a joint venture agreement with Huntsman Chemicals. This agreement set up joint ownership of the SAN Facility by both companies via one joint venture company (GEH-III). Operation of the facility remains GE Plastics' responsibility.

In August 1990, construction began on another two-line expansion of the SAN Facility to include the latest in technological advances. Production is scheduled to begin in January of next year; and will increase the total capacity of the plant to over 300 million pounds a year.

The Bay St. Louis site... Our culture

Prior to completion of the facility, a rigorous effort was put toward the selection and training of the initial workforce. Management received approval to operate under a Participative Style of Management. This meant involving and empowering employees well beyond traditional management thinking. This style of management has prevailed throughout its history; and is considered an essential ingredient for the past and future successes of the site. There have been many organizations, both within and outside of GE, that have visited the site to observe and ask questions of our work culture. All have gone away impressed with our facility and our people—the majority of whom are from right here in Hancock County.

Bay St. Louis

City officials pleased with past, eager about future developments

BY TRACI BONNEY

If you ask Mayor Edward Favre what has happened in Bay St. Louis in the last year, he'll grin and say one word: "Progress."

In fact, he may say it several times: "Progress, progress and more progress."

Favre said in a recent interview that there is a lot of interest in Bay St. Louis from people outside the city, and a lot of excitement within the community about the strides the city is making.

ACHIEVEMENTS

The city has reduced utility rates twice in the last year; maintained a stable property current unit at Hancock Medical Center can handle; granting Future Vision TV cable company a franchise to serve the residents of Bay St. Louis; —adopting a tree protection ordinance that will prevent the needless destruction or marring of Live Oaks and magnolias of certain trunk diameters; and the approval of the new city logo, which has already won an award for The Prime Time Group of Gulfport.

MAIN STREET PROGRAM

The acceptance of the city's application to the Main Street Program makes Bay St. Louis the newest member of the statewide downtown revitalizahaven. Painters and those who work in many other media have made the city their home and base of operations.

Local artists who had not had their works displayed outside the area are now receiving recognition in New Orleans and other large cities.

Writers also call the area home, both those with national renown — like historian/biographer Dr. Stephen Ambrose — and those who consistently receive local notice — like Ray Stieffel, whose short stories are recognized on a regular basis for their excellence by the Gulf Coast Writer's Association.

are pleased with their successful challenge to the count.

DOCKSIDE GAMING

Dockside gambling has been a divisive and hotly contested issue in Bay St. Louis both before and since it was voted into the county in December 1990.

It has resulted in the formation of a mayor's advisory committee, which was recently disbanded because three of the five city council members felt it had served its purpose, the hiring of a second city attorney to deal exclusively with gaming-related issues and a consultant/liaison to work with the city and other groups involved in the issue, and the contracting of a consulting firm to conduct a comprehensive feasibility/design guidelines/zoning study for the city.

Favre said, "With the gaming/zoning study in hand, we will have an opportunity to prevent some of the problems from occurring with the advent of the gaming industry."

FUTURE PROJECTS

Favre said the city has in its plans the completion of several long-awaited projects: lighting Hwy. 90 from the Bay bridge to the Waveland city limits; updating the city's zoning; providing complete utility services to the annexed portion of the city; and the annexation of the area around Bay Cove Harbour.

Other items on the city's wish list include expanded public recreational facilities; AMTRAK service; and complete infrastructure replacement and expansion.

Several business-oriented efforts are either being planned or underway. An intensive recruiting campaign is being designed to expand the budding computer development firms located in the city.

Service and retail business retention and expansion efforts are being implemented. The city administrators have an immediate goal to help create or locate an additional 89 new businesses in the city by December 1992 to add to the city's existing base of 511 businesses.

THE CENSUS

The city received national attention last year when it challenged the federal government's 1990 Census figures.

City officials claimed the census counters missed by several thousand residents, and documented statistics to prove their claim. Their concern stemmed from the fact that the city stood to lose up to $5,000 over a 10-year period for each person not counted in the census. The city's efforts brought the camera's eye focus of the Discovery Channel to the problem and pushed the city into the national lime light briefly. Although the city will not hear any firm results of their challenge until July, officials

TOURISM

The city organized the Bay St. Louis Tourism Commission, which has meant an increase in visitors and business, according to city administrative assistant Michael Cuevas.

She said commission director Pat Cuculla (who works on a voluntary basis) and her 20 volunteer workers serve as ambassadors for the city at the Hancock County Welcome Center. Cuevas estimated that of the approximately 40,000 people the tourism commission volunteers saw last summer, one-third visited Bay St. Louis.

tax base without increases of either municipal or school taxes; continued to improve and upgrade city services; and changed its procedures so that land annexed into the city will be properly zoned for its use at the time of annexation instead of being automatically zoned residential.

Bay St. Louis officials also have succeeded in obtaining a lower fire rating classification for the city, which means that residents will pay less for fire insurance.

Other accomplishments include:

—the updating of the city lot cleanup regulations, which now allow the city to charge a property owner up to $5,000 if he refuses to comply with cleanup rules, and gives the city the leeway to do the cleanup job in-house or through a contractor; revamping the city computer system to update record keeping functions;

—rezoning parcels on Drinkwater Blvd. to allow the construction of a kidney dialysis unit, which will allow treatment of more patients than the

"With the gaming/zoning study in hand, we will have an opportunity to prevent some of the problems from occurring with the advent of the gaming industry."

—Favre

SUMMARY

To sum up his comments, Favre said the city plans to work for continued efficiency in providing improved services, and to encourage "development the extent of which we have never seen before in the city."

He grinned again and recited the slogan used during his mayoral campaign: "In short — Preservation With Progress."

Bay St. Louis blends past, present and future

Special to the Echo. Founded in 1699 by Bienvenu because of its natural beauty and abundance of wildlife, Bay St. Louis is walking boldly into the 21st century.

tions and improved services have encouraged and enhanced investment opportunities for new residents and business entrepreneurs.

The Bay St. Louis agenda for

It is the immediate goal of city administrators to help in the creation or location of an additional 89 new businesses to add to the existing base of 511 businesses currently operating in Bay St. Louis by December, 1992.

Bay St. Louis is the newest Mississippi Main Street City. The program, designed by the National Trust for Historic Preservation, is administered by the Mississippi Downtown Development Association.

Main Street Bay St. Louis will address the organization, promotion, design and economic restructuring of the three main commercial areas of Bay St. Louis.

City parks and recreational facilities have recently undergone rehabilitation, including the restoration and remodeling of Ulman Avenue pier. The pier has become widely recognized throughout the Gulf Coast and is prominent in visual media coverage.

Bay St. Louis is a magnet for creative artists. Pilgrimages are made yearly by thousands to visit galleries and studios of local artists, many of whom are Bay St. Louis natives.

Writers of national, regional and local renown call Bay St. Louis their home. Local musicians are receiving national and regional coverage of their talents.

Religious and racial harmony are intrinsic in this multi-ethnic local society.

City services continue to be increased with the modernization of administration, public works and fire and police protection.

A "wish list" for the future includes expanded public recreational facilities, AMTRAK service, and complete infrastructure replacement and expansion.

This small city will continue to make bold strokes of achievement with lasting consequences for a secure future.

BAY SAINT LOUIS
A NEW LEAP

Planning and developing a future based on its historic past, natural resources, and innovative technology, Bay St. Louis has established itself as a place apart from other Mississippi cities.

A stable property tax base, consistent utility rate reduc-the 90's includes extensive planning and development. An intensive recruiting campaign is being designed to expand the budding computer development firms currently located in the city.

Service and retail business retention and expansion efforts are being implemented.

Bay-Waveland Schools

District gets 'A' for efforts

BY TRACI BONNEY

Test scores are higher, but taxes aren't, within the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District.

Superintendent Robert Magee said the district is pleased with several accomplishments over the last year. One is an increase in performance outcome scores.

Only one student in the district failed the Functional Literacy Exam during the last year. Magee said the student is probably one of the brighter ones in the district, but is a foreign exchange student who has not yet mastered English.

The FLE is one of several skills measurement tests given to students throughout Mississippi each year. The Basic Skills Assessment Program is administered to students in grades 3, 5 and 8. The Stanford Achievement Test is given to students in grades 4 and 6, and the FLE is given to high school juniors.

In all three tests, the district met or surpassed the state minimum requirements. This is purchase the needed classroom and administrative supplies for the schools.

As of June 19, the district had heard nothing official about further state reductions in school district funding, but a rumored cut could mean a loss of $113,000 for the district if the state reduction is made.

However, Magee said, "Even if there is a cut, it won't affect our minimum program, because we will get the money back from the state in July."

FIVE-YEAR PLAN

The district's five-year plan for educational improvement is due to be reviewed in August, Magee said.

The plan, adopted last summer, is a comprehensive district-wide approach to school improvement. It includes projections for improvement for all district programs and facilities.

The 86-page book encompasses goals and objectives for 1990-1994, in areas ranging from educational leadership to school climate, from staff development to instruction. It contains 50 separate goals and 223 objectives.

Magee said, "I think we're right on schedule with the plan. When we review it in August, hopefully the book will get a little thinner and will keep getting thinner each year as we reach our goals and objectives."

FACULTY

Magee commended all the faculty and staff members in the district for their work throughout the past year, and made special mention of Billy Rhodes and Gale McRaney, who temporarily took over the duties of principal Roger James when he was called to Saudi Arabia with the 1355th National Guard unit.

Magee said the district hopes that James will be back around the first of the school year to resume his position at Bay High School.

PROJECTS

The district completed construction on its fine arts building and auditorium at Bay High School. The $936,000 complex has been "widely accepted by the community," Magee said, "and certainly the school district is proud of it."

The auditorium has state-of-the-art sound and lighting systems, and has been used for many functions during its first year in existence, from school assemblies to city government meetings.

District projects for the upcoming year include the installation and implementa-a 5.6 percent improvement over the 1989-1990 district performance, in which 94.4 percent of the minimums were met.

Magee said, "We're pleased with the test scores—not satisfied, but we are pleased."

1990-1991 BUDGET

The school district has in the last two years managed to add new programs to its academic and extracurricular agendas without requesting an increase in city taxes. The proposed 1991-1992 budget of $7,510,401 is $494,755 less than the 1990-1991 budget of $8,005,156.

Part of the reason for the decrease is that no monies are allocated for construction projects during the upcoming year. At the same time, the district plans to add girls' softball to its extracurricular activities and to hire additional special education aides to help handle an increase in the number of students.

Magee said that despite cuts at the state level during the last school year, the district was able, by some belt-tightening, to

Diamondhead Ace Hardware

Diamondhead Ace Hardware, 443 Yacht Club Drive south of I-10, offers hardware, sundries, houseware and a service department with UPS, gift wrapping, Western Union and some postal services.

Ace Hardware has new owners, Lisa and Frankie Comfort. Lisa worked with the previous owners for four years. Frankie was a contractor in Diamondhead for several years before the Comforts became the new owners. Their work experience in the Diamondhead community means they are acquainted with many of the community's residents.

Diamondhead Ace Hardware opened at 4402 E. Aloha Drive north of I-10 in January 1990, and moved to their present location January 2, 1991. The new facility has a new feature: a service department with UPS shipping, gift wrapping, fax service, a blue-print machine and some postal services.

The new store is located at 443 Yacht Club Drive south of I-10 next to the Texaco station. Owners Lisa and Frankie Comfort invite you to stop by and visit them, and see the new Diamondhead Ace Hardware.

Their phone number is 255-3469.

ABC Rental Center

ABC Rental Center, 1198 Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis offers tool and equipment rental for homeowners, contractors and party givers. Charles Delk is owner. Nevin "Buz" Becker is manager. Employees include Ray Ladner, Kevin McMahon and Ricky Farve.

Charles Delk and his family moved to the Coast in October 1968 and opened A to Z Rental Center on Pass Road in Gulfport. The business's name changed to ABC Rental Center in 1972. The Gulfport store moved to its present location on Hewes Avenue in 1978, and the Bay St. Louis store opened in 1979.

ABC Rental Center takes pride in providing a valuable service to the community. Charles Delk extends thanks to his many friends and customers.

Benigno's Package Liquor

Benigno's Package Liquor, located 130 Blaize Street, Bay St. Louis, provides retail sale of package liquor.

The business was started by Norman Benigno in 1966 as the first liquor store opened in Hancock County after the legalization of liquor. The store was later owned by Wilbur "Bill" Johnson, then Mrs. Lollie Ramond. The present owner, Leverna Benigno Dedeaux, is a niece of the first owner.

Benigno's Package Liquor is open 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The store may be reached at 467-4241.

Cathy's Jewelry & Gifts, Inc., 2054 Waveland Ave. (Our Shopping Center), offers all types of 14 karat gold jewelry, jewelry repair, design and monogram, watch repair, engraving, ear piercing, class rings and gift items for men, women and children. A special service at Cathy's is free gift wrapping.

Sheri Cooper is owner, with Margie Capps on sales full time and Julie Lagasse working part time in sales.

This July, Cathy's celebrates its 16th year in business at the same location in Our Shopping Center. Cooper said this would not have been possible without the faithful support of the store's customers.

"We at Cathy's Jewelry thank you sincerely for your patronage and shopping at home in Hancock County," she added.

Mane Attraction

Mane Attraction is a full service salon and hair care center serving the entire family.

Marilyn North, who has been a hair stylist in the Bay-Waveland area for nine years, is owner/manager. Charlotte Ladner is stylist/color technician.

Together, the two have attended advanced training seminars throughout the United States to offer customers the latest trends in hair design.

"I think what attracts our clients is our warm, comfortable atmosphere," said North.

Mane Attraction has served customers for three years, and is located at No. 8 Colonial Plaza, Bay St. Louis, telephone 467-0522.

West Building Materials Inc.

West Building Materials Inc., located 647 Demonituzin St., Bay St. Louis, was established in 1892 in Atlanta, Georgia, by the West family as a wholesale hardware outlet.

Their services include: full service building materials, lumber, roofing materials, paint, plumbing, electrical, hardware, lawn and garden equipment.

They also offer millwork, paneling, plywood, sidings, hand tools, power tools, floor coverings, windows and other appliances.

Established 1892 by the West family in Atlanta, Georgia, as West Lumber Company, it expanded into the areas of wholesale and retail.

All retail and wholesale outlets were then located in Atlanta, Georgia. In the early 1950s, the West family expanded throughout the Southeast and the retail stores were then well known as West Cash and Carry.

Over the next few years West store sizes were enlarged and are currently named West Building Materials and West Superstores. West currently operates 38 stores, five located in Mississippi: Bay St. Louis, Gulfport, Hattiesburg, Clarksdale and Meridian.

The Bay St. Louis employees include: Dave Oliver, manager; Ken Anderson, assistant manager; Leon Hurkes, floor manager. Sales and service staff include Ron Favre, Tasha Cuevas, Judy Bourgeois, Doug Kennedy, Ron Perry, Farren Washington, Tina Gatlin, Don Gomillion, Jason Harris and Deshae Blanchette.

All of Bay St. Louis West employees are local residents, and are happy to serve the local community with their building material needs at the best possible competitive prices on a daily basis.

They may be reached at 467-6667.

Mitchell's Furniture

Mitchell's Furniture, located 9020 Highway 603, Waveland, provides a complete inventory of brand name furniture and accessories for sale.

The business originally began 15 years ago in downtown Bay St. Louis at 111 North Second St. by the present owners' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bates Sr.

Now owned by Mitchell and Donna Bates, the business offers two locations, one in Gulfport at 1502 30th Ave. and in Waveland. Free local delivery is available.

The telephone number is 467-8537.

Hancock Monument

Hancock Monument on Central Avenue in Bay St. Louis was founded in 1960 to serve the community's memorial needs.

Established to serve families in the Bay St. Louis-Waveland area, Hancock Monument has now placed memorials from Alabama to Louisiana to central Mississippi.

Owner J.E. Loiacano and manager John Necaie feel that this expansion into other areas helps the local economy by bringing new money into Hancock County instead of just circulating the dollars that are already here.

Hancock Monument offers a selection of granite and bronze memorials at lower prices than other companies which sell monuments as a sideline instead of as the main product.

Their phone number is 467-3574.

Lydia's Audubon Shoppe

Lydia's Audubon Shoppe, established in 1985, offers an extensive assortment of nature related items, including bird feeders, bird baths, wildflower seeds, squirrel guards or feeders, hummingbird supplies and gift items.

Lydia Schultz is owner. Her staff includes Judy Toups, nationally recognized ornithologist, and birders Gerry Morgan and Peggy Siegert.

"We opened with a nothing ventured-nothing gained attitude," said Schultz. "The customers don't come here first—the birds and wildlife do. The shop has grown and flourished."

Lydia's Audubon Shoppe is located at 914 Highway 90 West, Waveland, telephone 467-BIRD.

BUSINESS PROFILES

Screendoor Graphics Inc.

Screendoor Graphics Inc., 1245A Old Spanish Trail, Bay St. Louis, offers fine quality custom screenprinting on t-shirts, caps, uniforms, jackets, bumper stickers, signs, decals, sports wear and more, as well as thousands of ad specialties, a graphic design service and pre-printed t-shirts with designs of local interest.

The staff includes Candace and Jim Strahan, owner/operators, and Chad Strahan.

Screendoor Graphics started in 1989 when the Strahans' former employer moved its regional headquarters from New Orleans to Houston. Not wanting to leave Bay St. Louis and the home they had grown to love, the Strahans opens a new business, drawing on Candace's art and print-making background.

Screendoor Graphics started by remodeling the former Parker's Hardware store on Old Spanish Trail and has now established a solid reputation for expert silkscreen printing, original graphic designs and dedication to quality and customer service.

The business operates under the "Platinum Rule": "Do unto others as they would have done unto themselves."

By day, Jim works as a geophysicist in New Orleans, but at night and on weekends, he is the "production department" and printer at Screendoor

Graphics. Candace runs the shop during the week, handles the ordering and paperwork, and does all the artwork. She is also the current president of the Bay St. Louis Business Association and editor of its monthly newsletter, the "Bay Biz."

She said, "Screendoor Graphics is committed to excellence and, in order to keep abreast of the latest screenprinting trends and technologies, maintains its membership in Screen Printing Association International (SPAI).

"Screendoor Graphics is your local source for quality screenprinting." The telephone number is 467-3355.

Paddle Wheel Motel and Restaurant

The Paddle Wheel Motel and Restaurant, Beach Blvd., Clermont Harbor, offers a relaxed atmosphere, luxury rooms and fresh seafood.

The Paddle Wheel Motel, Hancock County's only beachfront motel, has been in business since 1984. Built to resemble the sternwheel steamboats that once travelled the Mississippi River, it was constructed on the site of the Harbor Inn Hotel, which operated from 1926 to 1946, when it was destroyed by fire.

The motel has spacious rooms with two full-size double beds, private baths with shower and tub, table and chairs for in-room dining or having company, color televisions and direct dial phones. The motel also has spas, jacuzzis and waterbeds available.

The front rooms give a view of the Gulf, while the back rooms face the one-time port of Clermont Harbor. Both views can be enjoyed from private sun-decks.

Atop the motel is the penthouse suite. It features a fully equipped kitchen, dining area, full bath, color television and direct dial telephone, bedroom with a view of the old harbor, and living room with a sofa bed and sliding glass doors opening onto a private sun deck.

The restaurant, which has been in business since 1980, is next door to the motel. It specializes in fresh seafood prepared in a variety of ways.

Both the restaurant and motel are one mile west of Buckcane State Park and within walking distance of the beach.

Bruce McMahon is the owner. The telephone number is 467-0300.

Halcyon House Antiques

Halcyon House Antiques, located 211 Main St., promotes the downtown Bay St. Louis area through Antique shows and community participation.

Established seven years ago, they sell period furniture, brilliant cut glass, china, paintings, old prints, brass and collectibles.

Originally named Mr. Larry's Collectables, the shop was one of the first antique shops on Main Street. Halcyon House is noted for having the best prices in town.

The shop participates in several antique shows throughout the year.

It is owned jointly by Dr. Larry Heller, president of the Hancock County Historical Society and vice president of the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre, and Larry Timmerman, president of the Antique Dealers Association of the Gulf Coast.

The owners of Halcyon House believe in community involvement, and plan to participate in the Main Street-Bay St. Louis Program currently being developed.

Timmerman said, "We look forward to the Main Street Program because it is designed for progress with emphasis on historic preservation and quaintness for Old Town Bay St. Louis."

They may be reached at 467-1304.

Styles by Sheila

Styles by Sheila, 547 Hwy. 90, Waveland, offers full beauty salon service for men, women and children.

Owner Sheila McMahon began Styles by Sheila in 1973 with one chair. She worked alone for two years, and added onto her staff as the business grew. Eventually, it became necessary to move to the present location on Hwy. 90, where the business has operated for the last seven years.

The staff includes stylists Pam Curran, Debbie Claffin, Janice Mixon and Shannon Frommeyer.

McMahon said, "Keeping up with the latest trends and always trying to balance professionalism with a personal touch have helped us be successful in a highly competitive field."

The telephone number is 467-7180.

Hair Expressions By Tami

Hair Expressions By Tami, #1 Colonial Plaza, Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis, offers quality hair care services at affordable prices.

Michael and Tami Hand are owners. Tami Hand is the operator. She said the past year has been a great success, and extended her thanks to her customers.

The telephone number is 467-7953.

Gerry Lane Enterprises

Eric Lane & Gerry Lane (seated)

less than 6 months, he had them all turned around again. Eric and his wife Lisa and son Tyler moved to Baton Rouge 6 months ago to operate the Buick-GMC Truck-Subaru store. He and his father take turns making trips to Bay St. Louis to make sure things are running smoothly as well as daily telephone calls. The new Gerry Lane Saturn will open in late 1991 and will be a hallmark of all American made cars. Medium-priced, great looking and a sure contender in the war with the Japanese makes.

The customer is still first, followed by the employees, the suppliers and then Gerry Lane. "Without the customer who pays the bills, honest, dedicated employees and dependable suppliers, there is no need for me," he points out.

Gerry Lane Motors has changed names throughout the years with the additions of different partners, but now his whole name is back on the building once again and business is booming. "When we first came to Bay St. Louis, there was not a lot going on. We applied the techniques I learned over the years, and the folks in Bay St. Louis were not used to doing business that way. But it must have worked because we had a 489% increase the first year."

Today, as always, Gerry Lane stays attuned to current and future business trends by listening to his peers, reading widely, and watching the marketplace. But much of his business acumen comes from his penchant for knowing wisdom when he hears it.

Inside his wallet are scraps of paper bearing quotations that he's made part of his personal philosophy. One says, "To be successful in business, be daring, be first, be different." Another reads, "The person who gets ahead is usually one who does more than is necessary and keeps on doing it."

For Gerry Lane Enterprises, that comes down to simply treating people - customers, employees and suppliers alike - as he wants to be treated, with respect and understanding. A.C. Adam, General Manager of Gerry Lane Motors, follows the Gerry Lane philosophy closely in that, "We are here to do business the way customers want us to do business, listen to and respond to their needs."

That's the "golden" traffic light that keeps people coming back.

Advertisement

In 1966, an ambitious young man and his family came to Bay St. Louis to fulfill a dream. He had worked twenty-hour days, seven days a week in Baton Rouge, as the General Manager of Polk Chevrolet and had now taken all of their savings, kids' college funds, even his son's electric train set, to raise enough money to buy what is now Gerry Lane Motors.

Gerry Lane has bought and sold - at astounding profits - 11 failing dealerships, and he's never been in business a year without making a profit. Customers invariably appreciate the way they're treated by Lane and his employees.

Today, Gerry Lane Acceptance Corporation, an in-house lending corporation, is turning into another shining star for Gerry Lane Enterprises. Lane had heard about an Indiana man who was financing cars for people with bad credit histories. He and his son Eric studied the program along with John Brown and Terry Bell, long-time employees. He then invested money in training employees and acquiring computers. In February of 1990, he opened offices in Gulfport and Baton Rouge. Gerry Lane did not assume that people with bad credit histories are bad people. Instead, he reasoned, "Maybe their problems are justifiable - a lost job, unforeseen medical expenses. If I sell them a good car and help them take care of it, they're going to keep it and pay for it." In just 10 months, Lane sold customer 517 second-hand cars and had outstanding assets totalling $1.6 million. By last December, the Baton Rouge branch of the Gerry Lane Acceptance Corporation had done so well that Lane made it the general office and moved four families from Gulfport to staff it. The success of the acceptance corporation illustrates the way Lane does business and why Gerry Lane Enterprises earned $70 million in 1987, $77 million in 1988, $100 million in 1989 and $110 million in 1990.

A student of history, Lane believes there are no new ideas, so he improves on those which hold promise, then accelerates. He maneuvers around proven pitfalls and breaks no traffic rules.

Another exciting entity of Gerry Lane Enterprises is The Lane Agency, an award winning advertising business, operated by his daughter Sandra. The agency is almost 5 years old and had gained the respect of agencies and corporations alike that are triple in size. There are only 3 employees and they turn out work for 3 other automotive accounts besides Gerry Lane's five, as well as a variety of other accounts. With local, regional and national awards under their belt, The Lane Agency just keeps growing.

Lane's son, Eric, a former catcher for the San Francisco Giants calls himself the "clean-up man". And what a job he's done in cleaning up! He has successfully turned around 4 stores that weren't making the money that Lane had seen them make in the past. So Eric took over and in Mississippi SAM/ Southern All Metals Recycling Inc.

Mississippi SAM/Southern All Metals Recycling Inc., 5044 Hwy. 90, one-fourth a mile west of Waveland, was chartered in Mississippi in August 1990. The business recycles all types of scrap metals from individuals and industrial accounts; sells used steel and miscellaneous surplus items and sells propane and liquid oxygen.

Devorah Rosen is the manager.

Southern All Metals Recycling Inc. opened its doors four years ago in Slidell, La. Management of the company has had 20-40 years' experience in scrap recycling. The company's progress as a recycling center for scrap metals encouraged the management to open its new location outside Waveland.

The management of Southern All Metals Recycling Inc. hopes that its friendly and immediate service to customers, and the type of service the company offers, will make a difference in the community by helping to make the area a cleaner and brighter place to live.

The telephone number is 467-5704.

Dantagnan Realty, Inc.

Dantagnan Realty, Inc., located at 103 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, originated in Clermont Harbor in the 1920s.

The officers include: Edith Dantagnan Hayden, owners; Joyce Bowers, Edith Tabor, Charles Melson, Betsy Phillips, Marie Zwart and Ed Vera, sales associated; Angela Oliver, secretary; and Mary Benjamin, bookkeeper.

Dantagnan Realty, Inc., has a long history of real estate in Hancock County. Its founder, Adolph G. Dantagnan, sold lots in Clermont Harbor during its development in the 1920's. At that time, prospective purchasers were brought from New Orleans by train, shown lots and given dinner at a boarding house before returning home.

After many years experience as a specialist in commercial properties with Waguespack, Pratt, Mr. Dantagnan started a small agency in Clermont Harbor in 1946. He moved to Washington Street after the 1947 hurricane and "Mrs. Dan" joined him in business. Their office was a familiar site across from the Courthouse for many years until they moved to their current location on Highway 90 near the Bay bridge.

There are presently eight full-time associates who are knowledgeable of the area and all facets of the real estate industry. They are active in civic affairs and professional organizations such as West Gulf Coast Board of Realtors, Multiple Listing Service and Women's Council of Realtors. They may be reached at 467-4449.

BUSINESS PROFILES

Hancock County Farm Bureau

Hancock County Farm Bureau, Colonial Plaza (Bay St. Louis) and Hwy. 603 (Kiln), was established in 1953 for the promotion of farm practices, land uses, the rural betterment of Hancock County and the sale of insurance to people in the rural areas. Since then it has expanded, writing insurance in the city as well as in rural areas.

Farm Bureau offers family and individual memberships. It encourages family participation in Farm Bureau programs, including beauty and talent contests for local children and teens; safety programs for teens which teach lifesaving skills such as CPR and defensive driving; and farm safety and legisla-

The staff includes manager Theodore O. Bilbo; agents Gary J. Riddle, Deborah G. Alford and Timothy J. Hughes; and secretaries Diana Lacoste and Sharon Koenenn.

The Bay St. Louis office may be reached at 467-6327. The Kiln office may be reached at 255-1133.

Alarm Protection Service

Alarm Protection Service, 314 Choctaw Plaza, Waveland, provides, security service, alarm systems, closed circuit television and alarm monitoring.

With three locations, the company has provided its services to Mississippi and Louisiana since 1980 from New Orleans, from Waveland since 1983 and from Mandeville, La., since 1990. From a beginning with only three employees, they have continued to grow and now have 34 employees.

In 1986, the business acquired a central monitoring station. In 1988, they were chosen by AT&T to market their new security system 8000. In 1990 an alarm manufacturing company, Radionics, decided to private label a security alarm system for their company because of their sales, quality service department and company profile.

The staff includes: Cat Fleuriel and Spencer Smith, owners; Jay and Rachel Fleuriel, managing partners; James Scott and Joe Bismack, service technicians.

Jay Fleuriel said, "We are a full service company. We want your business and work hard to keep it."

Layne's Krispy Chicken

Layne's Krispy Chicken, established May 1988, offers fried, baked and barbecue chicken; an all-you-can-eat chicken and vegetable buffet with more than 20 items; catering; homemade yeast rolls and "the best cobbles around."

Located 319 Highway 90, Waveland, the restaurant is owned by Anthony (Tony) Smith. Jerry Smith is general manager; Kathy Landry, manager; and Jeff Rolstone, assistant manager.

The family has been in the restaurant business since the early 1970s. Jerry Smith is the "head chef" and is known for cooking good vegetables. Tony Smith, a former Pearl River College football player and graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi, has a bachelor of science degree in home economics with an emphasis in hotel and restaurant management. He has been in the restaurant business for 12 years and was brought up in it — his father owned Jerry's Krispy Chicken in Hattiesburg.

Tony Smith said, "We have the best quality of food for the price along the Coast, and we are committed to help Waveland and Bay St. Louis prosper."

Layne's Krispy Chicken may be contacted at 467-2072.

United Way

Moore & Powell, CPAs

Moore & Powell, CPAs, serve local accounting needs from five locations: Bay St. Louis, Biloxi, Diamondhead, Gulfport and Poyayune.

Moore & Powell offers a full range of accounting services to individuals, businesses, estates and trusts, including tax return preparation and consulting, auditing, and other management consulting services.

The staff includes Robert "Bobby" Parker, partner in charge of the Bay St. Louis office; Richard "Dick" Thomas, manager; Patti Harder, Shane Foreman, Denise Hoda, Tricia Gibbens, Sabrina Diamond and Regina Moran.

The firm began as municipal and county auditors; Charles Moore, a traveling auditor who served counties throughout the state, started the firm in the 1930s when he settled in Biloxi. His primary role there was as city auditor until the mid-1950s. During that time, several other cities were added to the clientele.

Sam Powell moved with his parents from Georgetown to Poyayune, then to New Orleans. He had achieved a college degree, but not in accounting. Through a LaSalle correspondence course in accounting, Powell got a job working with Moore in the late 1930s.

Powell temporarily left the firm during World War II when he joined the service. Upon returning in the mid-1940s, he decided to add regular accounting work to the auditing practice Moore had built.

Moore retired from the firm sometime during the 1950s and moved with his wife to Winona. Powell continued the practice with a staff of approximately five people, including John May and Powell's sister Edith.

In 1964, the Bay St. Louis office of Moore & Powell was opened in a small house near the beach. The office moved to its present Main Street location after the original office was destroyed during Hurricane Camille.

The Poyayune office opened in 1981. The Gulfport office opened on Hwy. 90 in 1985 and moved to 14th Street in 1987. The Diamondhead office opened in 1985.

The partnership was enlarged to include Vernon Gilley in the 1960s. Powell's interest was divided between Thomas Tucci in 1972, Steve Stewart in 1974 and Chris Anzalone in 1975. Upon Gilley's retirement in the early 1980s, Steve Wages and Robert Parker became partners in the firm. In 1986, Rita Tollison became a partner, followed by Jim Gunkel and Steve Dockens in 1987. Stewart left the firm in 1987. Gunkel left the firm in 1989.

Robert Bass with the Gulfport office said, "Moore & Powell is proud to be a part of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland community. Hancock County provides our firm with an integral part of our practice, and we encourage our staff to become intimately involved in the community and help the area progress without losing its rich, proud tradition."

The telephone number is 467-6042.

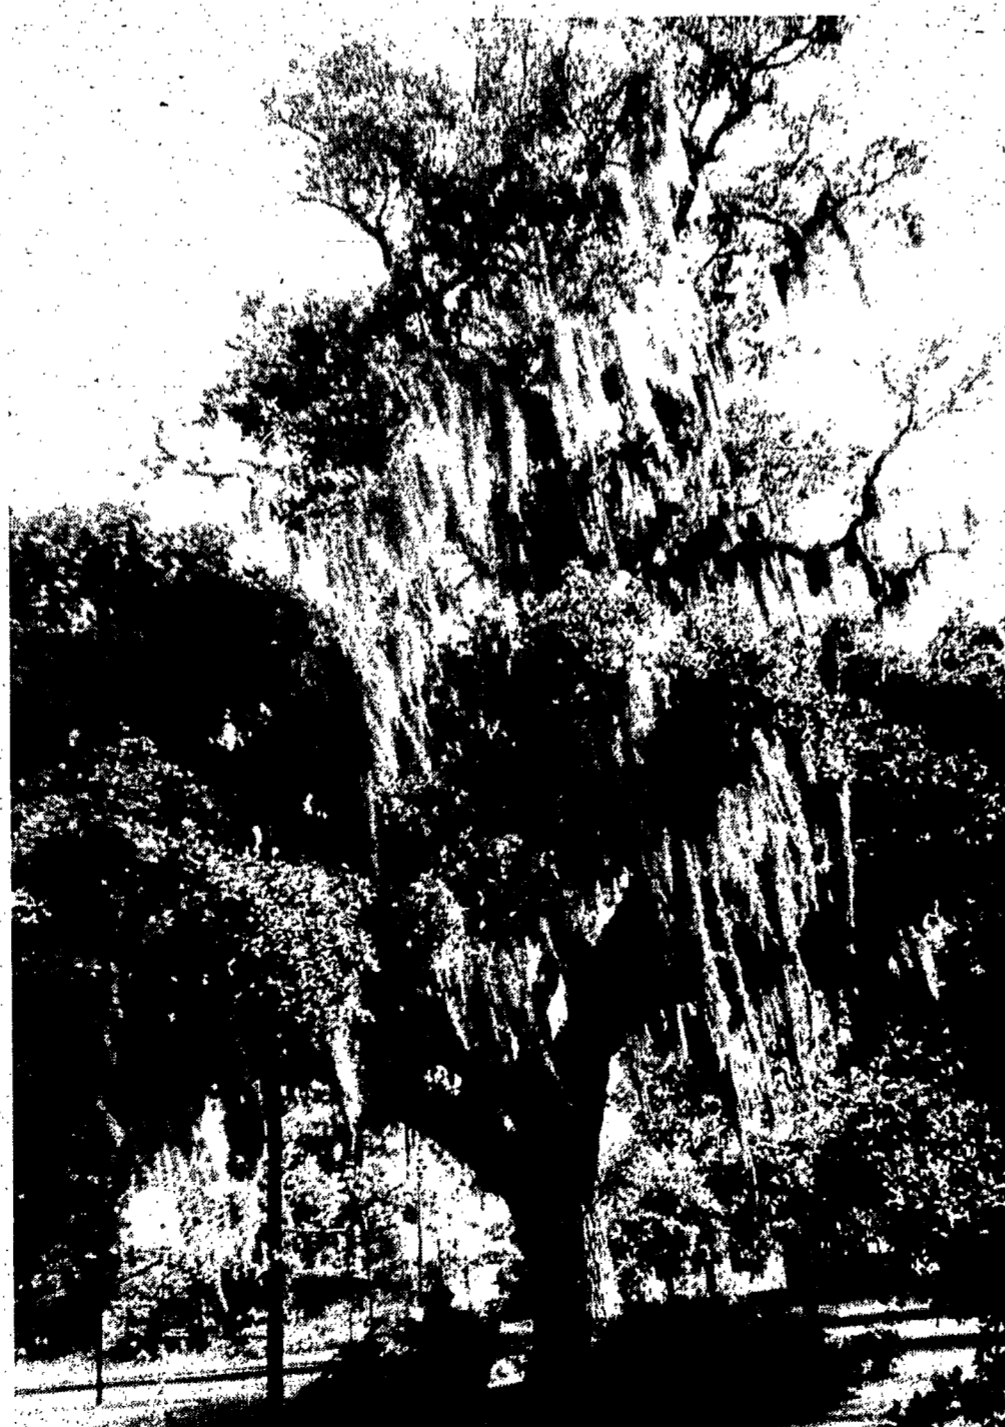

Beryl's Flea Market

Beryl's Flea Market, 9012B Hwy. 90, west of Waveland Ave., offers an assortment of new and old items.

Owner Beryl Nelson started in her home on Washington Street as a cottage industry in 1970. She moved the store to Central Avenue in 1983, and opened an arcade along with the store. From there, Beryl's Flea Market moved to its present location in 1988.

Beryl's Flea Market offers a variety of jewelry, books, baby items, wicker, religious items, what nots, etc. Beryl Nelson invites you to stop by her air-conditioned store and browse.

BAY SAINT LOUIS A PLACE APART

To the Citizens of Bay St. Louis:

"Progress with preservation" is the motto of this administration. We are steadily reaching our goals. With this Progress Edition of the Sea Coast Echo you will read about the many changes and improvements that have occurred during the last two years.

Your City Council, your employees and your Mayor have been responsive to your needs for a stable tax base, lower utility rates, increased economic development and improved city services. As a team, we are dedicated to continuing progress with preservation of our natural resources and quality of life.

You have made a commitment to this same motto by your acts of volunteerism in city-wide program, participation in civic and charitable organizations and activism in city government. You have made Bay St. Louis a place apart with your hospitality to our visitors and your kindness to your neighbors. You are our greatest asset. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Edward A. Favre

The Bay St. Louis site... Our work ethic

The Bay St. Louis site is currently pursuing three goals which are reflective of both the company's and the employees' priorities.

Safety: Team members have set a goal for receiving OSHA STAR Recognition. It is the highest award the federal government can give to recognize excellence in safety and health programs. The site was recently awarded an Achievement Award for 1990 Safety Performance from The Society of The Plastics Industry.

Environmental: We are always striving for a flawless record in the area of environment. All else must fall behind these. Our record in this area is used as a barometer to measure our success in every field. We are an active participant in the CMA's (Chemical Manufacturers Association) RESPONSIBLE CARE® Program wherein we are actively working to increase public involvement, understanding and confidence in our plant and its continued safe operation.

Customer Satisfaction: We have tried to re-define the word "customer." We do, of course, consider those who purchase our product, as customers, but within the term we also include our teammates, those whose products we purchase, and others with whom we interact—whether they be our industrial neighbors or fellow-citizens.

"If we have dollars to be spent locally, we are going to put them into the local schools. We know of no better way to give back to the community than to help improve the educational opportunities for our young people."

Bay St. Louis... Community involvement

"If we have dollars to be spent locally, we are going to put them into the local schools. We know of no better way to give back to the community than to help improve the educational opportunities for our young people."

This was stated by Ken Woodring, plant manager. Continuing, he stated, "We feel we have a responsibility to the communities in which we're located. We're involved in many local activities; however, the major thrust of our involvement is education.

What is meant by "involved?" What difference does it make, and what does this involvement have to do with GE Plastics? Our team members are working 8-12 hours a day at a site which on the average is 25 miles from their homes. Yet their presence is felt around the county—PTA's Junior Achievement, environmental organizations, school boards, city council, etc. They are making a difference not only to the community, but to GE as well. They are helping to spread the message that WE CARE and are willing to become involved.

GE Plastics and Hancock County

How is it that GE Plastics chose to locate here in Hancock County? Port Bienville was particularly attractive because of its close vicinity to transportation such as waterways for barge access, the local railroad and highway facilities adjacent to the site. Also, the Mississippi State Employment Service and the Vo-Tech Center were instrumental in our selection and training process.

GE Plastics' investment of more than $150 million shows that we are here to stay. Our annual payroll is $4.3 million; and our portion of local property taxes is $500,000. We have recently acquired the property surrounding our site for future growth; and consider this investment another means of showing that we're here to stay. Is GE committed to Hancock County? You bet we are!

Stennis Airport

Stennis International Airport is a dark horse candidate in the race for the expansion of New Orleans International Airport to handle the excess business from that crowded metropolitan facility.

If a regional airport designation is in the future for Hancock County's Stennis International Airport, the long-term investment in the next century could reach into the billions of dollars and result in thousands of jobs.

At the very minimum, the airport could receive a major boost in business by handling cargo instead of passengers from a cramped New Orleans airport.

Local officials know the selection of Stennis as a regional airport is a long shot, but they believe the airport will receive extra

County-owned Stennis International Airport is a general aviation facility that features the second longest in the state—8,500 feet—that can handle aircraft up to an empty 747.

Several air-oriented industries are located at the light industrial park, where a dozen T-hangars for use by small private business as a result of a comprehensive site-selection process now under way.

In late 1990, Stennis was included in a study prepared by KPMG Peat Marwick, the New Orleans Aviation Board's consulting firm, as one of six sites being considered as a new air carrier airport. The New Orleans airport is no longer able to expand its facilities, and a new site will aid in meeting the projected air transportation needs of the metropolitan area.

"Stennis is a viable location for an airport of some magnitude, whether it be a regional airport for passengers or a regional cargo facility."

planes are being constructed. A total of 36 more T-hangars will be built.

Phillips Aviation is the fixed base operator at the airport, which is home to

The other locations named in the Peat Marwick study are Des Allemands, St. John the Baptist Parish, St. Tammany Parish, East New Orleans and Baton Rouge.

As the only site located outside Louisiana, Stennis got low marks for its 52-mile distance from the New Orleans central business district, but county officials say most negative factors can be countered by an updated version of the airport's master plan that will be completed in July.

Harold "Buz" Olsen, executive director of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission, said Stennis Airport is back in contention for a regional airport designation after having been dropped from the original list of possible sites.

Olsen remains optimistic about the future of the airport because of the momentum developed in the selection process for the New Orleans air transit business.

"Stennis is a viable location for an airport of some magnitude, whether it be a regional airport for passengers or a regional cargo facility," he said.

"We're not just looking at an airport for tomorrow, we're looking for an airport of the future."

Olsen

Even if Stennis is eliminated from consideration for passenger service by the New Orleans airport authority, the airport could still receive the designation as a regional state-of-the-art cargo airport. Cargo handling is not as lucrative as passenger service, Olsen said, but it is potentially very profitable.

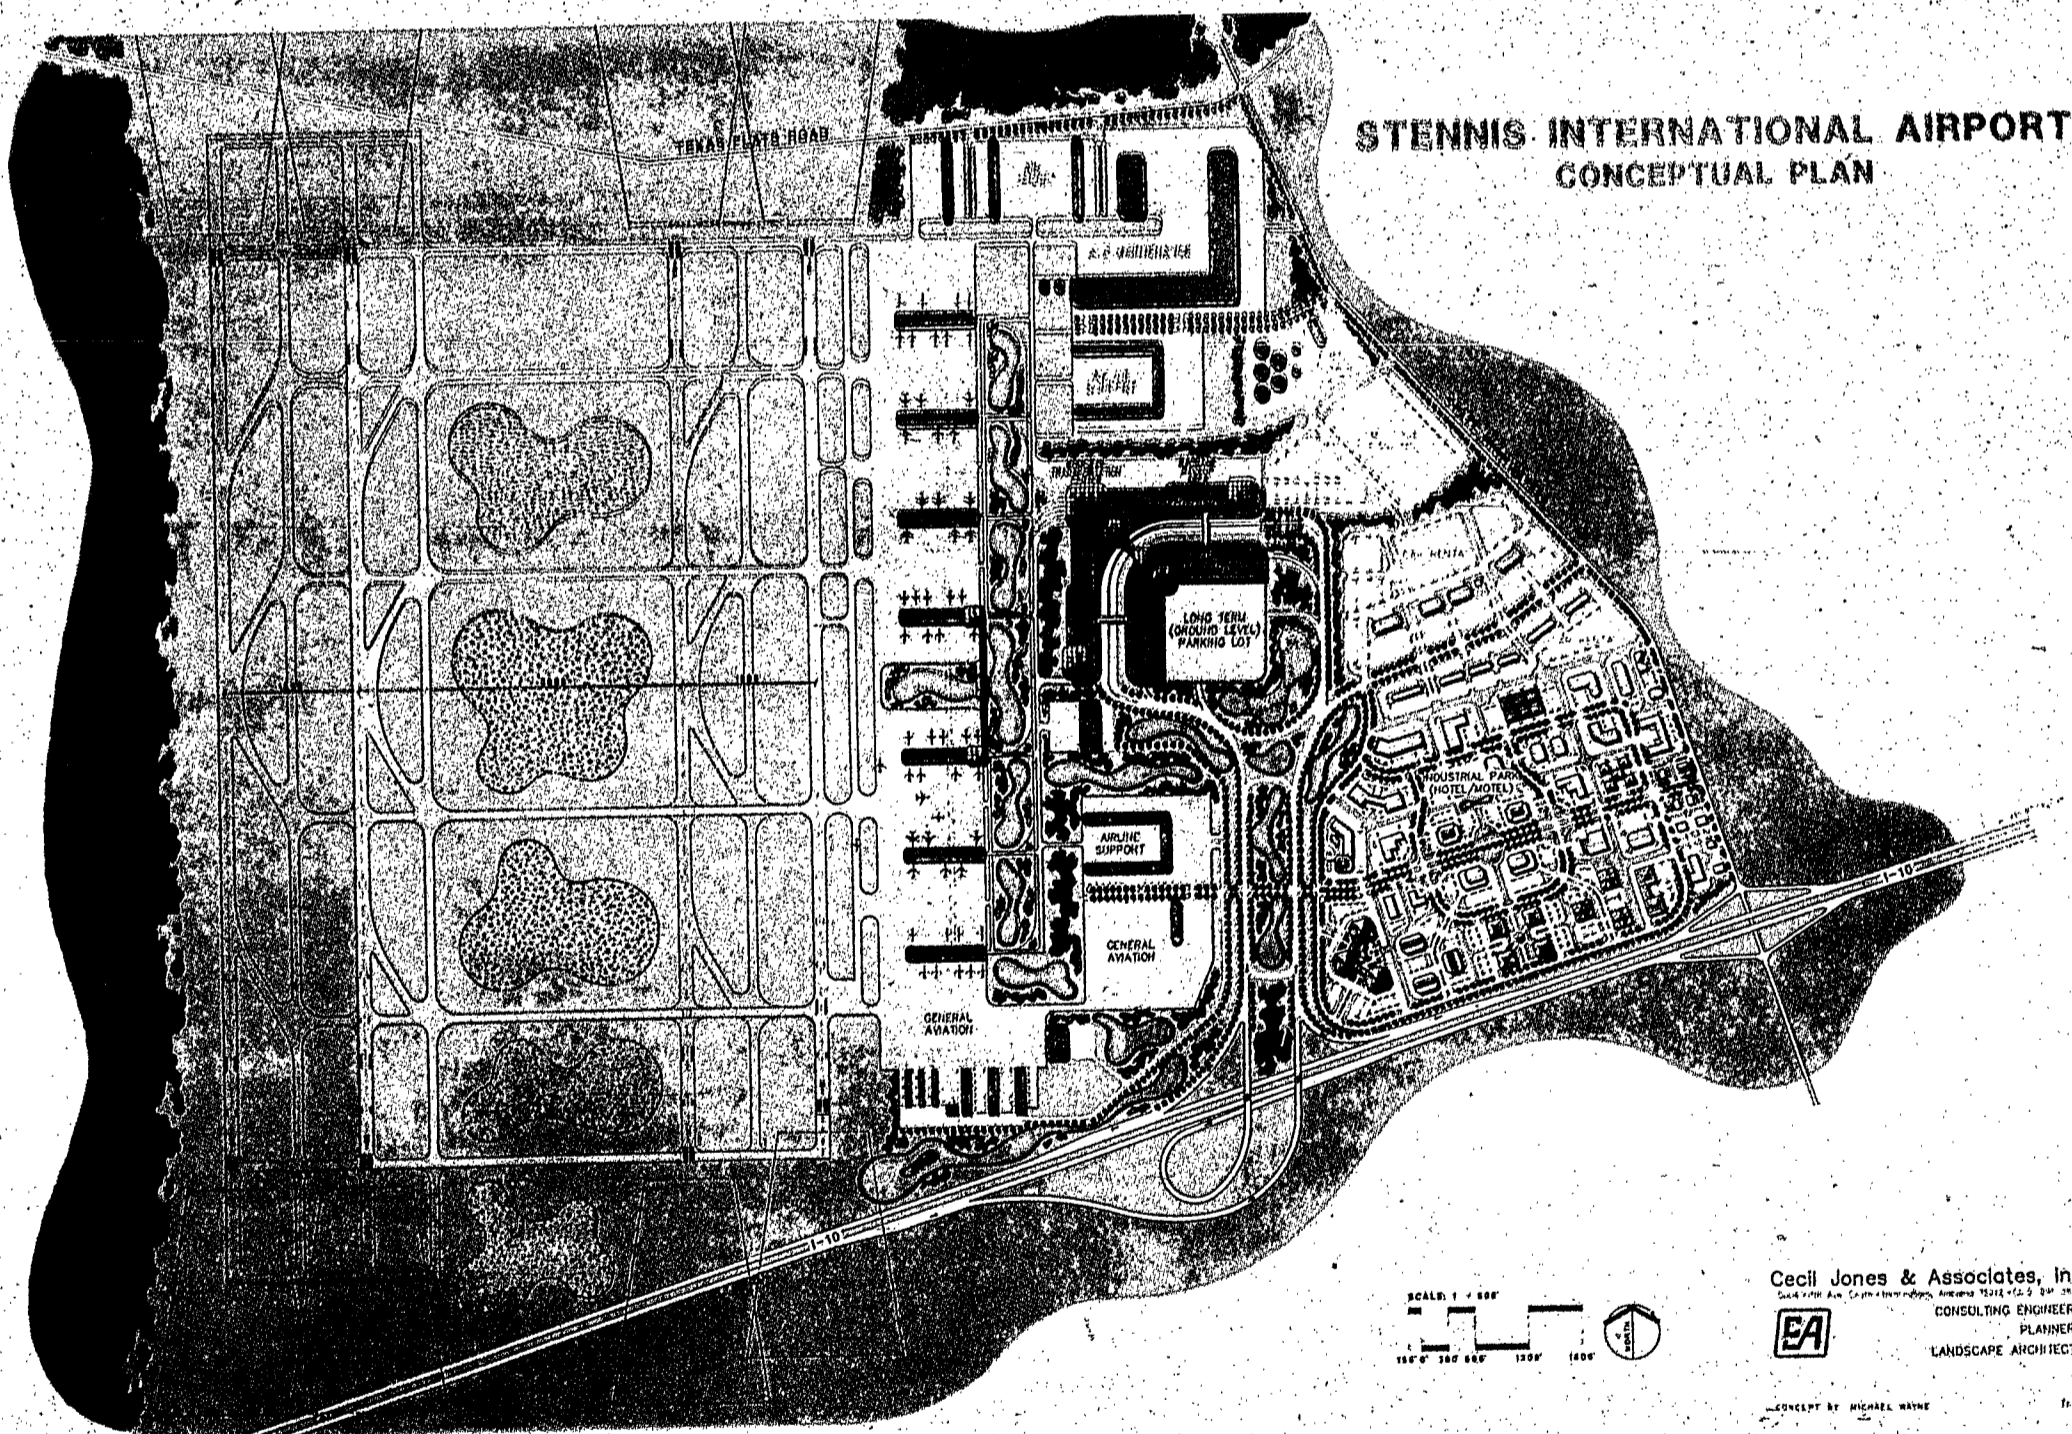

In a recent letter to Olsen, David Blackshear, director of aviation at New Orleans International Airport, noted that the city had received additional federal funding for the second phase of the site selection study that will include examining airspace.

Blackshear wrote, "The results of that detailed analysis may have some significant impact on what we can and cannot do regarding a new airport, and Stennis will be involved in that analysis."

Olsen believes the new airport master plan will work to Hancock County's advantage by emphasizing the airport's assets and answering negative points brought up by Peat Marwick.

Port Bienville industrial park sees expansions, improvements in 1990

Hancock County's industrial development activities over the past year took major steps forward with construction starts and expansion of major companies and a drastic drop in unemployment.

Future economic growth rests on more expansions of industrial park tenants, and the resolution of environmental restrictions involving the wetlands issue, according to Harold "Buz" Olsen, executive director of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission.

Topping the list of activities is the completion of $1 million worth of improvements at Port Bienville Industrial Park. These improvements included the completion of the rail car wash and the construction of two new warehouses for the ship terminal, the Hancock Industries' building and the bulkhead for bulk unloading. All of these facilities are now in operation, creating revenue for port operation.

Another important event was the grand opening of Eaglebrook Inc.'s $2 million facility which produces ferric sulfate, the principal product used in water treatment, for the company's southern U.S. market. "Eaglebrook is reaching its planned employment level of 12, and is looking at expansion and the possibility of moving research facility here from Canada," said Olsen.

Also, the Calgon Carbon Corp. project official got under way when construction began on the $63 million facility. Approximately 60 people will be employed by the Pearl River plant, which will produce activated carbon.

Gulf Coast Fabrication, an established Port Bienville tenant, has steadily increased employment, and is now the

Also relating to unemployment, the county has been actively involved in the area's recovery from the effects that the Mississippi Army Ammunition

According to District 2 Supervisor Ronald Cuevas, 1990 was a culmination of projects begun three years ago.

Cuevas, who serves as president of the county board of supervisors, cited among those projects the construction of the county Human Services Complex; the completion of a major county road improvement project; contracts with Eaglebrook, Calgon Carbon Corporation and Scott Paper; and the completion of two outdoor basketball facilities, the walking track at Hancock Medical Center, the Washington Avenue and Dunbar Avenue piers.

He also mentioned the permit the county received recently for a new landfill. "We're one of only a few counties in the state that received a permit this year," Cuevas commented.

Cuevas said the county has much to be pleased about:

for Hancock County is consistently lower than that of neighboring counties; industrial development "has been continuously pursued and with much success."

—County services have been improved through newer facilities and the upgrading of equipment.

—Taxes last year increased less than they have in previous years.

—The county's working relationship with NASA has helped meet the needs of those displaced by the closing of the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant.

—Participation in the Pearl River County vocational-technical center has expanded, which offers local residents more opportunity to receive training for profitable jobs.

—Pearl River College will be expanding its post-secondary vocational-technical training programs for the benefit of county residents.

—The establishment of fire districts in the county gives the volunteer fire departments more revenues to upgrade the quality of service to their

—With the relocation of the Welfare Department to the Human Services Complex, the county Child Development Center can now move onto the former Welfare Department site.

Cuevas said the SeaBees have verbally agreed to tear down the old Welfare Department building, which does not meet the safety code requirements for the Child Development Center, and build a new center with materials provided by the county.

ZONING

Cuevas said the unincorporated parts of the county may be zoned, soon.

He explained that the county Planning Commission has been working for more than a year to develop a zoning system for the county. The need for zoning out-

He said, "The master plan gives us the edge to take those negatives and make them positive. One of the things they're saying is the distance from the CBD. What we're saying is, if this is going to be a state-of-the-art facility, let's make it a state-of-the-art transportation center, with not just airplanes but mass transit systems. We're not just looking at an airport for tomorrow, we're looking for an airport of the future."

The county's efforts to promote Stennis Airport are being strongly supported by state officials. In fact, the state is involved in the preparation of the Stennis master plan.

Said Ken Barfield, manager of the aeronautics bureau in the Department of Economic and Community Development, "All we can do is provide the best information possible about Stennis Airport."

Barfield continued, "I definitely think the Stennis Airport has something to offer in a regional airport concept. It will only be minutes' difference from anywhere they might locate in Louisiana, and possibly might have some other great advantage. If (Stennis) didn't get into the air carrier operations, New Orleans' air cargo problem could be relieved very quickly without a great deal of cost by adding Stennis Airport into the picture."

Commenting on Peat Marwick's assessment of Stennis, Barfield said, "They haven't looked into some of the other sites close enough to really assess just what the problems might be. They may have greater problems in the sites that they're considering than they have at Stennis."

Continuing, he said, "Any time you're developing an airport, one of the environmental considerations is noise. At Stennis most of the facilities would be inside the NASA buffer zone. You don't have any residential development inside that buffer zone so therefore noise wouldn't be very much of a problem."

"Acknowledging the uphill battle the county airport faces in the regional airport contest, Olsen said, "We've kept ourselves alive because of tenacity. We're going to hang in there as far as we can go with this thing."

If the future does hold a regional airport designation for Stennis, the county and the coastal region could realize a portion of the economic impact that Atlanta received from Hartsfield Airport. That facility represents a $2 billion investment and 35,000 jobs.

For the time being, Olsen said the county has already cleared one hurdle—the Corps of Engineers has approved a proposal to allow runways to be built in the NASA buffer zone. Mitigating the loss of wetlands is still a problem facing the airport project.

"We're going to hang in there and give it our best shot," said Olsen. "Hancock County is excited about the proposition of this happening. It's not something that's going to happen tomorrow; we're just working hard to present our case."

Hancock Chamber puts best foot forward

BY CINDY VERNON
Executive Director

Hancock County is one of the fastest growing communities in Mississippi. It's a great place to live and do business, and we're sure that you considered these factors when you decided to locate here.

Every day thousands of people visit this area. They travel around our attractive residential areas, shop in our convenient shopping centers, and learn about our strong, progressive business community.

We, as a Chamber, assist business people, visitors, and local residents in working together to make Hancock County the best place to live and work in south Mississippi.

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is your action agency; civic clearing house; public relations promoter; counselor; legislative representative at all levels of government; information/research network; and we're people, people working together to make their community an excellent place to live, work and play.

FACT: A Chamber of Commerce is your action agency. It's organized to serve as your representative, voicing your ideas and concerns to others in the community.

FACT: A Chamber is your research and information bureau. It can help you with lifestyle data, examine product markets;

FACT: A Chamber is your legislative representative at all levels of government. It is your local connection to state political activities, and it closely monitors all governmental actions on your behalf;

FACT: A Chamber is your promoter and public relations counselor. It helps attract newcomers, encourages buyers to support local businesses, and promotes growth and development of the community;

ABOUT US: The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce was originally chartered in 1925 as the Bay St. Louis Chamber. The corporate name was officially changed to its present title in 1945, as it serves all communities and cities in the county.

We are governed by a 20-member board of directors. Fifteen directors are elected by the general membership; and each serves a three-year term. Four directors are annually

FUNDING: The Chamber is primarily funded from dues paid by its members. These monies are supplemented by contributions from local governments.

COMMITTEES: Chamber members actively devote their time and energies to a variety of programs. Members are encouraged to participate and choose to serve on any of the many committees we have to support the current events in the community.

We would like to invite you to stop by our office at 801 Hwy. 90. Cindy and Georgia would be happy to visit with you about our community and what it has to offer.

We've been alarming you for generations.

We've been giving Mississippi wake-up calls from dials to digits. So whether you're getting up early or using the snooze bar to sleep a little late, we're right there to alarm you.

side Bay St. Louis and Waveland became apparent, he said, when people began to complain about such things as businesses opening next to residential areas and bars next to churches.

Cuevas said the Planning Commission is close to finishing its work on the zoning and will present it to the board when the work is complete.

Those businesses that are already in operation will be zoned for commercial use in their current location, Cuevas said. By the same token, areas that are largely residential will be zoned for residential use.

DOCKSIDE GAMING

Much of the furor surrounding dockside gaming has focused on Bay St. Louis. However, sites for two of three proposed facilities are currently outside the city limits: Bay Cove Harbour in Cedar Point, and Bayou Caddy Casino at Bayou Cadet.

The City of Bay St. Louis is considering annexing the area around Bay Cove Harbour. Cuevas said he felt that before the board takes a position on the matter, the supervisors should hear the opinions of the area's residents. Other board members that were asked agreed with Cuevas.

Bayou Caddy Casino officials told the board in May that they may be ready to start business in September. The officials have stated they plan to draw 90 percent of their employee base from Hancock County, and also plan to operate the casino as county residents.

FUTURE OUTLOOK

High on the supervisors' priority list is the upcoming county election. All five supervisors are campaigning for reelection, and are working to finish outstanding county projects. Cuevas said no new projects will be started until after the election.

"After the election the board, whoever may be sitting on it, will need to focus on developing a four-year plan for their goals during the next term."

One project that has been authorized is the beginning of plans for expansion of the county jail. Cuevas said this has been needed for some time and must be done sooner or later, no matter who wins the fall elections.

The county jail expansion has been considered for some time. Much of the jail's operating budget is funded by money received from the housing of Immigration and Naturalization Service inmates. With more room, more inmates can be housed and more money will be received for the jail's operation.

Another problem that faces the supervisors in the future is the expansion of the county's

near future," Cuevas stated. He said court services expansion will probably be a priority in 1992.

Some good news for the county is that the state may start work this fall to four-lane Hwy. 603 from Hwy. 90 to Interstate 10, and possibly farther north to Stennis Airfield.

Southern District Highway Commissioner Ronnie Shows told the board in May that the work may start between September and November if preparations go according to schedule.

Expected completion time on the project is 14-18 months, Shows added.

Plant closure has had on the local residents and economy.

Through the county's efforts, Olsen said, "The economy rebounded quickly, and people were able to get meaningful training through Business Services Corp. and Pearl River Community College."

The last 12 months saw the county initiate a $450,000 general obligation bond to build an industrial building and T-hangars at Stennis International Airport. Twelve of the 48 planned hangars have been completed.

The commission was awarded a $60,000 Federal Aviation Administration grant to prepare a master plan for Stennis Airport. The much needed update is scheduled to be completed in the fall.

Olsen said, "The master plan falls in line with our strategy to continue to stay in the new Orleans regional airport picture." Stennis Airport is under consideration as a passenger or cargo facility to handle the excess traffic at New Orleans International Airport.

During the past year, the commission moved its offices from Highway 603 to a building on Highway 90 in Waveland which offers much needed staff and meeting space.

Regarding the future, Olsen said, "The Number of prospect inquiries has been phenomenal, but the downside is until we can solve the dilemma of dealing with wetlands in an industrial park, we cannot make a commitment with any client or industry. We have no property that we can sell in the industrial park without facing a wetlands problem."

Hancock County plays key role in space program

Thirty years ago, NASA made an investment in this area and its people by locating the nation's premier rocket test facility in Hancock County. Since 1961, Hancock County has played a vital role in America's efforts to explore space. From Apollo in the 1960s to the current space shuttle program, some of the world's most advanced rocket systems were tested and proven flightworthy here at home.

Construction began May 17, 1963, on the Mississippi Test Facility, now named the John C. Stennis Space Center. During the 1960s, the center tested the first and second stages of the Saturn V rocket which carried American astronauts to the moon.

For the past 15 years, Stennis Space Center's role in propulsion testing has been to test the main engines which power the space shuttle during launch. NASA modified the existing test stands from the Apollo era to test the shuttle main engines.

Hancock County has been both a contributor to and beneficiary of the center's activities. The large workforce created by the center has helped sustain and advance Hancock County both economically and progressively.

According to a study released in February by Dr. Charles Campbell, associate professor of economics at Mississippi State University, 20 percent of the 4,500 employees at the center live in Hancock County.

The study also shows that Stennis Space Center's economic impact within a 50-mile radius was $293 million in 1990. It is estimated that SSC has a tax revenue impact on local government revenues of $35.2 million.

In addition to NASA, Stennis Space Center is home to 18 other federal and state agencies along with many industrial contractors and subcontractors. The Naval Oceanography Command recently installed the Cray Y-MP8/8128 computer system at SSC. The supercomputer is one of the most powerful general purpose computers in the world.

Stennis Space Center has contributed to the educational efforts of Hancock County. NASA has provided programs for thousands of Hancock County students at Stennis and in the classrooms and auditoriums.

Some 116,000 visitors registered at Stennis Space Center's Visitor Center in 1990. A total of 27,000 students participated in educational programs at Stennis while another 68,000 students were reached last year through presentations in area schools. Stennis conducted 31 teacher workshops for educators of all grades on a variety of subjects.

Because of its excellence in large rocket propulsion testing, Stennis was selected to play a key role in future NASA programs. Stennis plans to test the newly developed Advanced Solid Rocket Motor.

ASRMs will improve flight safety and reliability of the shuttle over the motors now used and provide an additional 12,000 pound lifting capability to place heavier payloads into space. The ASRM will be instrumental in deploying Space Station Freedom.

Stennis will also test the propulsion system for the nation's next generation of heavy-lift launch vehicles, the National Launch System, an unmanned family of launch vehicles.

Five companies along the Gulf Coast and nine south Louisiana firms are directly involved in the construction of the $69 million Component Test Facility, the first new major test facility built at Stennis since the 1960s Apollo program. This facility will support the National Launch System, a joint effort between NASA and the Department of Defense.

The program will provide a flexible, robust and extremely reliable launch system to deliver heavier payloads into space at much lower costs. This new heavy-lift launch vehicle will be essential in accomplishing the president's Space Exploration Initiative.

This bold program will take American astronauts back to the moon to establish a permanent lunar base before launching on to Mars.

In the area of research and development, the Science and Technology Laboratory is the main scientific research arm of the Stennis Space Center. Scientists and engineers are working toward better understanding the Earth's natural processes, and are developing tools and techniques to manage the environment more effectively. Scientific projects range from archaeology and tropical forest management to geology and mathematical modeling.

Specifically in the area of remote sensing, Stennis has become a leader in earth science programs of national and international significance. Remote sensing technology is being applied to wetlands and coastal ecosystems analysis, and land-sea interface studies. Because of the laboratory's extensive research, Stennis has been designated as NASA's lead center for the commercialization of

To help industry take advantage of NASA technology, the laboratory gives technical support to private firms as part of commercial development projects. The Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program helps stimulate broader commercial uses of space technology by small businesses. In addition, Science and Technology Laboratory scientists work closely with government, academic and industrial laboratories to increase technology transfer opportunities.

"For 30 years, Stennis Space Center has enjoyed an excellent partnership with the surrounding communities," said Stennis Space Center Director Roy Estess. "At Stennis, we are proud to be working with the good people of Hancock County to strengthen the economic growth of this area and to improve the quality of life for this and future generations."

Coast Electric Power Association

Coast Electric Power Association, 301 Hwy. 90 at Main Street, has provided electric power service to the community since 1937.

Coast Electric Power Association was organized in 1937 as a not-for-profit electric distribution cooperative. From its beginning of 50 members on 25 miles of line, Coast Electric has grown to serve 42,509 members with 3,788 miles of line, or approximately 11 members per mile. Through the years the association has earned the reputation of being one of the fastest growing electric cooperatives in Mississippi and the nation.

Coast Electric's nine-member board of directors, which is elected by the association's customers, its membership, includes Roy Baxter, Virgil O. Burge, Richard Dossett, Francis L. Lee, Gordon R. Lee, William Douglas Mooney, Clyde W. Richard, Austin B. Rouse and Felix H. Seeger.

Company headquarters is located in Bay St. Louis, with branch offices in Biloxi, Gulfport, Picayune and Poplarville. The phone number is 467-6535.

Performance Oil Change and Tune-Up

Performance Oil Change and Tune-Up, 1248-A Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, offers oil changes, tune-ups, minor repair work and a variety of other automotive services and repairs including belt, hose, wiper blade, water pump and valve cover replacements and transmission service.

The shop is owned and managed by Keith Ory. Assistant manager/tune-up technician is Richard Schroeder. Brian Wilkerson is mechanic/oil technician, and David Babineau is the pit man.

staff is upgrading its services to keep up with the newer cars. In addition to its other services, Performance offers fuel injector cleaning and on-board computer checks. The staff is fully trained, and Richard Schroeder is a Certified ASE Mechanic.

Their motto is "We respect your car as our own." Prompt, guaranteed service is done using top-of-the-line products. Fresh coffee is always available in the clean, comfortable waiting room.

BUSINESS PROFILES

Gulf South Photography and Video

Gulf South Photography and Video in Pearllington has offered wedding and commercial photography and video, as well as panorama landscape photo decor rentals, since 1985.

Owners Warren and Mary

Ellen Gravois have more than 30 years of experience in wedding, commercial and public relations photography and five years of experience in videography.

Warren Gravois spent 25 years at the University of New Orleans university photographer. Other photography-related achievements to his credit include past president of University Photographers of America (1976); and photography jobs in Africa (1985), China

Gulf South Photography and Video offers high-quality wedding video productions, including post-production editing, titles, background music and more.

They can be reached at 533-7829.

Kent & Sue's Quick Stop

Kent & Sue's Quick Stop, Lower Bay Road, Lakeshore, has been in operation since 1974, offering groceries, gas, hardware, butane and several other items and services to the community.

Owners Kent and Sue Sellier bought the business from Carol and Melvin Mitchell, and have added boiled crawfish and hardware. The store also has a laundromat, and sells fishing worms and tackle.

Store hours are 5 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week.

The staff includes managers Craig and Bruce Sellier, Julie Carbo, Mike and Dwayne Raphael.

Kent Sellier said, "We have built our business on treating our customers like friends, not customers."

They may be reached at 467-7797.

Dairy Queen of Waveland

Dairy Queen of Waveland, 401 Hwy. 90 (corner of Hwy. 90 and Nicholson), offers ice cream and fast food.

The Dairy Queen system provides the customer with the highest quality food at a price that is highly competitive to other popular chain stores. "We Treat You Right" is a logo that combines a "family atmosphere" with great food at the right price.

And as always, Blizzards are in the forecast every day at Dairy Queen!

Owners Dan and Wanda Tracy are both native to the Gulf Coast. Mr. Tracy is from Gulfport and Mrs. Tracy is from Long Beach. Les Fraser and Mattie Taylor make up the management team, and the staff consists mainly of area students and local residents.

The staff's training involves more than flipping burgers. All trainees must master the skill of making the famous DQ "curl" on the tops of ice cream cones, dipping cones without losing the ice cream, and turning Blizzards upside down without spilling them.

The Waveland Dairy Queen is part of an international chain that is now 51 years old. It opened under the current owners in 1990.

Owners Dan and Wanda Tracy commented, "We are very proud to be a part of the system and are grateful to everyone in the area for giving us the opportunity to provide them with a variety of quality products.

"We are hopeful that in the future our community involvement will expand. At present, Dairy Queen is involved in the Waveland Little League as well as various projects at the local high schools: DECA, Adopt-a-School, CYO, field trips, store tours, etc.

"Now that we are into a second year in Hancock County, we are striving to increase our product line to include yogurt, cakes, cupcakes and logs, and to add chocolate soft serve to our menu."

The phone number is 467-2211.

B & G Auto Parts

B & G Auto Parts, located 1111 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, provides wholesale auto parts, automotive paint and accessories, and 3-M window tint.

Their employees include: Shawn Gardner, managing partner; John Edgecombe, manager; Mike Kennedy, assistant manager; Brent Anderson, counter sales; David LaGrose, delivery; and Greg Kothman, window tinting.

Gardner said the staff of B&G Auto Parts concentrates on courteous and efficient service. "We will match or beat any local advertised prices, and will get the part faster and have the customer riding again."

They may be reached at 467-5133.

One-Hour Photo Developing started in Diamondhead in December 1987. In October 1988, the photo studio was incorporated. In July 1989, the entire business moved from a rental building to its own building at Park 10 Drive, where the current building has room for expansion.

Owner Luis Cordova recently attended Winona School of Photography in Mount Prospect, Ill. He and his wife Anne, who is manager and staff, plan to further their educations towards master's degrees in photography.

The phone number is 255-9803.

Bay Catholic Elementary School

Bay Catholic Elementary School, 301 S. Second Street, provides quality Catholic education for students in preschool, kindergarten and grades 1-6. Bay Catholic Elementary School was founded in 1960 by the Sisters of St. Joseph. It was known as Our Lady of the Gulf School until 1976, when it became an interparochial school for grades K-6 and was renamed. The preschool program, called Early Childhood, was added to the school in 1985. Average enrollment at BCE is 220 students.

The administrative staff includes Rev. Peter Mockler, pastor of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church; Ann Allen, principal; and Mary Harris, president of the school board. The school has a certified teaching staff.

Allen said, "Bay Catholic Elementary School is a living/learning community striving for academic excellence and the transmission of the Catholic faith. Bay Catholic is accredited by the State Department of Education and the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges."

The telephone number is 467-5158.

Christ Episcopal Schools

In August, with the opening of the 1991-92 school year, Coast Episcopal Elementary School will celebrate 42 years of educating children of Hancock County.

Founded by the Reverend Charles R. Johnson, Coast Episcopal enjoys a reputation of academic excellence, offered in a caring, family-like environment.

Under the direction of the Reverend Jon A. Caridad, headmaster, and Mrs. Betsy Grant, principal, the mission of Coast Episcopal is to educate the whole child—intellectually, physically, creatively, emotionally and spiritually.

Additional classes in physical education, art, music, computers, library and Christian living complete the educational program.

Located at 912 South Beach Boulevard, behind Christ Episcopal Church, the school offers classes for students in pre-kindergarten, kindergarten, and grades 1 through 6.

Extended care for children of working parents is provided. Transportation is also available from the Bay-Waveland area, Diamondhead, Pass Christian, and other points along the Coast.

Coast Episcopal School also operates Coast Episcopal High School in Pass Christian for students in grades 7-12. For more information call 452-9442.

Bayhi School of Dance

Bayhi School of Dance, 311 Ulman Avenue, was established in Metairie, La. in 1949. It now has two locations, Bay St. Louis and Picayune.

Jeanne Bayhi Farrugia is owner. Dance lessons include tap, ballet, tõe, jazz and acrobatics for ages two through adults. All students are given individual attention. They are taught the graded system, not just dance routines.

Methodist Children's Center

Methodist Children's Center, 162 Main Street, Bay St. Louis, offers care for children ages three months to five years; and after school and summer camps for children from five to 11 years old.

The center opened in 1980 under the leadership of the Rev. Willis Britt as a service provided by Main Street United Methodist Church to the community.

The staff includes Betty Robinson, Barbara Ervin, Connie Favre, Bernice Montgomery, Joni Dugan, Denise Monti, Kay Sones, Sherea Bell, Annette Bell, Nicole Valentine, Cherie LeBlanc, Kay Morris and Patty Chevis.

They can be reached at 467-4297.

Bay Schools

tion of a computerized instructional management system; the construction of an athletic field house at Bay High School; and a possible solution to the problem surrounding a proposed youth center site.

Magee said the computerized instructional management system will not only allow faculty and administrators to reduce the amount of paperwork they must contend with, but will give the schools a way to keep their testing bank current.

The state requires that public schools meet certain educational objectives each year. In addition, the teachers and schools have sets of objectives to be met. These objectives include school athletic booster club. The club plans to finish the interior of the building at their cost after the school district funds the construction of the exterior.

The board also recently appointed Charles Benvenutti to confer with city and county officials on the possibility of a joint "quit claim lease" to the Hancock County Youth Task Force for use of nine acres of land on Blue Meadow Road. The land, whose ownership is as yet undetermined, would be used to start a county youth center for recreational, tutoring and counseling.

Until the June 13 board meeting, members of the school board planned to stop any

"I think we're right on schedule with the plan. When we review it in August, hopefully the book will get a little thinner and will keep getting thinner each year as we reach our goals and objectives."

The computerized instructional management system will allow the teachers to store the test items for these objectives in the computer software and to use those items in writing their examinations.

"This will give us a better opportunity to update our testing bank," Magee commented.

Turning from the academic to the athletic, the district school board recently authorized advertisement for bids on the construction of a 40-by-60-by-12-foot metal field house at Bay High School. The building will provide dressing rooms, restrooms and possibly a concession stand.

The field house will be used for sports events such as soccer games, according to the high

At the June 13 meeting, the board decided their efforts would be better spent in working with the city so the task force can make use of the land for the next 10 years while the district and city jointly maintain the land until they can claim it by adverse possession.

Benvenutti was asked to meet with city and county officials about the matter and report to the board at a later meeting.

Board president Linda Penrose said that if the proposed solution is feasible and agreeable to all involved, the money the city would have paid the state for the eminent domain claim could instead be invested into the center.

University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Coast

The University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Coast (USM-GC) offers 30 undergraduate degrees through the 2+2 program with Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College and Pearl River Community College. 13 graduate degrees and five specialist degrees.

It offers classes from four locations: Long Beach, Keesler Air Force Base, Jackson County and the John C. Stennis Space Center. USM-GC has offered classes in the Gulf Coast since 1947 at various high schools, Keesler AFB and MGCCC. USM-GC moved to Gulf Park in Long Beach in 1972 after the campus was donated by The Gulf Park College Board of Trustees to the State of Mississippi. Gulf Park, formerly an all-female junior college, was founded in 1917.

The Long Beach campus sits on 26 acres, surrounded by dozens of hundred-year-old oaks, including the 500-year-old Friendship Oak, and faces the Mississippi Sound.

Since 1972, USM-GC has expanded to locations at Keesler AFB, Gautier and the John C. Stennis Space Center. Because USM-GC offers only junior-level and higher courses, partnerships have been formed with both MGCCC and PRCC for easy transfer. This transfer is called the 2+2 Program.

The dean of USM-GC is Dr. Joe E. Holloway. For more information about completing or continuing your education on the Coast, call the USM-GC office of Recruitment toll-free at 1-865-4500.

Specialty Office Services

Specialty Office Services, 408 Hwy. 90, Suite A, Bay St. Louis (between Coast Electric and the Bay St. Louis City-County Library), offers several business services, including: typing, word and data processing, secretarial and answering services, resume preparation, computer assistance (hardware and software), duplications of originals and/or copies for regular clients, sending meeting announcements, production of address labels for mass mailings, and shipping/mailing services.

Specialty Office Services can help get a business organized, write letters and handle a variety of paperwork. Specialty Office Services is also authorized to sell U.S. Sprint long distance service.

The staff includes Patricia J. Meeks, owner; W.R. Pitcairn Jr., associate; Diane Meeks and Samantha Pitcairn, assistants.

The business started as a home-based office in September

1981 when Patricia Meeks recognized a local need for typing services and began by typing for her classmates while enrolled at Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College. She had a business phone installed in her home and purchased a small copier, a business computer, with word and data processing software, and a bookcase.

She purchased an IBM-compatible computer system in 1987, which is able to communicate directly with her original

Patricia Meeks and W.R. Pitcairn Jr. became affiliated with one another when Meeks performed secretarial work for Pitcairn. The two worked together on a variety of office-related tasks for a great number of people along the Gulf Coast.

The telephone number for Specialty Office Services is 467-0507.

"Just Looking" Consignment Shop

"Just Looking" Consignment Shop, 304-F Choctaw Plaza Shopping Center, Waveland, sells women's and children's clothing — some new, some nearly new — as well as shoes, belts, jewelry and gifts at reasonable prices.

Owners Gail Farrell and Connie Bohte established Just Looking in 1989 to provide the community an option: to make money from good clothes that were bought and seldom used, but in too good shape to throw away.

Farrell said, "The community has provided us a chance to meet new friends and customers."

The store has a consignment fee of 50 percent of sales and issues checks on the 15th of each month. The store also sells costume jewelry and other novelty items.

Treutel Insurance Agency Inc.

Treutel Insurance Agency Inc., established 1925, is an independent agency that offers quality coverage through many different companies to meet their customers' insurance needs.

Located 112 Court St., Bay St. Louis, they offer policies for the home, auto, boat, business, liability, workers' compensation, commercial arts, property, disability, dental, medical and life insurance, as well as umbrella insurance and annuities.

Treutel Insurance Agency was founded in Bay St. Louis by P.J. Treutel and has a book of business dating back to 1925. It was incorporated under its present name in 1961 and serves the local area as an independent insurance agency repre-

The agency is a professional organization dedicated to providing the best insurance products available to its clients at the most reasonable costs. Treutel Insurance serves several thousand clients in the South Mississippi area, specializing in providing personal and commercial lines of property and casualty insurance, group and individual health coverages and individual life insurance.

Treutel Insurance Agency is a member of the Independent Insurance Agents of America, the Mississippi Insurance Council and the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. We thank the people of this area for their continued business and support over the years.

The officers include: David Treutel, chairman; David Treutel, Jr., president; Pennie H. Treutel, vice-president; Norma Cuevas, secretary/treasurer; Robin V. Foreman, office manager; Jim Thrifflay, agent; Ames Kergosien, agent; Toni Handshoe, manager; Jean Fox, commercial lines; Robin Pitalo, personal lines; Marilyn Ryan, bookkeeper; and Candice Pavolini, receptionist.

Treutel Insurance Agency Inc. may be contacted at 467-5662.

Elaine's School of Gymnastics

Elaine's School of Gymnastics, 419 Gladstone Street, Bay St. Louis, celebrates 25 years of gymnastics instruction this year. Owner and instructor Elaine Givens started teaching in the summer of 1966. She began her school in a vacant service station on Hwy. 90, and built her own school soon afterward.

Elaine's School of Gymnastics teaches gymnastics to boys and girls ages 2 and up.

The phone number is 467-1778.

Mike Meyers, State Farm Insurance

Mike Meyers State Farm Insurance, located 845-A Highway 90, offers auto, life, home, business and health insurance.

They have been serving the community since 1989. State Farm is the largest insurer of automobiles and homes in the United States with over 40 professional claims personnel on

The insurance agent is Mike Meyers and the account representatives are Johna Pitzer and Gwen Meyers.

The business may be reached at 467-5011.

Mary's Eatery

Mary's Eatery, 116 N. Beach Blvd., Bay St. Louis, offers deli items and seafood in a relaxed atmosphere and an old-fashioned setting.

The menu at Mary's Eatery includes po-boys, deli food, seafood, daily lunch specials and weekend seafood platters. Customers can dine in or order meals to take out.

Owners Mary and Bruce

Daggett purchased the Eatery in August 1985, and changed the name to Mary's Eatery in 1988. The restaurant is best known for its roast beef po-boys and special recipe for shrimp po-boys.

Mary Daggett said, "We want our customers to feel comfortable, just like at home."

They can be reached at 467-8570.

The Music Studio

The Music Studio, 11-B Leisure Time, Diamondhead, offers music lessons, instrument repair, music books, supplies and gift items.

The staff includes Gloria Dupree, owner and teacher; teachers Jim Ballard, piano and voice; Carl Fasshauer, guitar; and John Simic, orchestra, strings and band instruments.

mance. Lessons are available to all ages.

In business since October 1, 1989, The Music Studio is steadily growing. The staff's philosophy is that music is entertaining and should be enjoyed by everyone, and that making progress in learning to play an instrument brings a confidence that helps in other areas of a person's development of his or her full potential.

The telephone number is 255-1442.

Karen & Co. Hair Salon

Karen & Co. Hair Salon, 4402 East Aloha Drive Suite #10, Diamondhead Shopping Center, offers family hair care and other appearance maintenance services and products.

Karen & Co. opened May 15, 1990, when owner/manager Karen Zahniser purchased Diana's Hair Artists after being employed there about eight years. She moved the business to Diamondhead Shopping Center and renamed it Karen & Co. Diana Diffrient, Carol O'Brien and Sandy Rhodes remained with the firm after the change, and June Calouet joined in September.

Karen & Co. offers hair care, manicures, pedicures, other work on nails, and a host of services to keep you looking your best. They also use and sell Matrix, Fermodyl, Redkin, Zoto and other salon-approved products.

Zahniser said, "We use only the best products for our patrons." They can be reached at 255-3353.

These Tiny Powerhouses Are Making a World of Difference

The extraordinary adsorption power of carbon has been known for centuries. But until Calgon Carbon activated its potential forty years ago, it had been virtually an untapped resource.

Today, Calgon Carbon has transformed these tiny adsorption powerhouses into vital tools for environmental control, product quality enhancement, and industrial process improvement. And we continue to pioneer this young industry with advanced products and technologies that are helping people to breathe cleaner air, drink purer water and make better products more efficiently.

Calgon Carbon, we're making a world of difference.

When told there was, he asked if the city can get on with the interior work.

Friolot pointed out that the city has only two maintenance workers doing the repairs at the civic center, and said they were working as fast as they could.

The board then voted to award bids for the city's FHA sewer and water project, and to authorize a cemetery property boundary survey.

When a question arose about the need for the survey, several aldermen answered, but Alder-
